Education center discussed

A Southeast Missouri State University educational service center for the Bootheel may be a little closer to reality if the turnout at a preliminary discussion Thursday night is any indication of public support.

About 75 people, mostly educators and public officials, met at the Ramada Inn, Highway 62 East, with Dr. Robert E. Leestamper, university president, and Dr. David A. Strand, vice president for institutional development at the university.

The service center would provide courses for college credit for general education, certificate programs and some graduate level programs. A site for the center has not been chosen.

Leestamper said the general education programs would allow individuals to take courses to fill leisure time or follow a two-year program leading to an associate degree. The final two years leading to a bachelor's degree would have to be taken on the university campus at Cape Girardeau.

The certificate program, in which a student receives a certificate showing completion of course requirements, is usually completed in one year. The program would probably include courses oriented to industry and agriculture.

Students would be drawn from a six-county area, including Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Stoddard, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties.

Leestamper said he does not expect the State Legislature to fund the program this session. The center would have to be included in the budget to be submitted Dec. 1, and Leestamper said the university could not fulfill all the requirements for establishing the center in the time remaining.

He said the program would require $25,000 to $50,000 funding for the first year. Future money would come automatically through the current funding process, in which money for the university is appropriated on a scale based on the number of credit hours taken by students.

Leestamper said he hoped to see at least 100 students taking courses the first year, and added that 200 to 300 would have to be taking courses for the program to be considered a success.

He said the location would depend on available facilities and how easy it would be for students to get to the site. The best site geographically might not be the best site from a standpoint of facilities, he added.

The center would use an existing facility, such as a school or empty factory, to keep costs down.

If a school is used, classes would have to be held in late afternoon and evening, he said.

He said it was unlikely the center could be in several different locations because funding approval might be difficult to obtain if the center were located in too many different towns.

Leestamper said he expects to have the study on the program ready within six months. It must then be approved by the Coordinating Board for Higher Education, the Legislature and the governor.

The center would not conflict with Three Rivers Community College in Poplar Bluff, Leestamper said. Dr. Jack Bottenfield, president of Three Rivers, was among those expressing support for the center.

Leestamper said the center would draw many people who are not now attending college, including adults who might attend to make better use of their leisure time and who feel Poplar Bluff or Cape Girardeau are too far away.

Medicaid expert fails to appear

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal Medicaid antifraud specialist today failed for a second time to appear before a Senate panel investigating whether he took thousands of dollars from computer companies to help them win government contracts.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., acting chairman of the subcommittee on investigations, said he will recommend that Charles A. Cubbler be cited for contempt of Congress.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., ranking minority member of the subcommittee, agreed that a contempt citation should be sought.

Nunn said that federal marshals had been unsuccessful today and Thursday in locating Cubbler to serve a subcommittee subpoena. But he said Cubbler's attorneys had been informed personally on Thursday that the subpoena was being issued although they refused to accept it on behalf of their client.

"Mr. Cubbler is obviously evading our (investigative) process," Nunn said.

He said the subcommittee's parent Government Operations Committee would be asked to forward to the full Senate at a later date a recommendation that Cubbler be cited for contempt. Nunn said Cubbler also had ignored an Aug. 25 subpoena served on him to turn over his books and records to the subcommittee.

The chairman said that documents relating to Cubbler's activities have been forwarded to the Justice Department by the subcommittee and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

St. Louis man jailed here

William Frank Adams, 42, of St. Louis was arrested about 9 p.m. Thursday in Bertrand by the highway patrol in connection with the theft of a travel trailer from Presley's Trailer Sales, Highway 62 East.

Buck Presley reported the theft to the Scott County Sheriff's department at 8:30 p.m. of a 245-foot travel trailer which was last seen traveling east toward Bertrand.

After making the arrest for the theft of the trailer, the highway patrol discovered that the pickup truck Adams was using to pull the trailer had been stolen earlier in St. Louis.

Adams is presently beind held in the Sikeston jail awaiting transfer to the custody of Scott County authorities.

2 vacancies on vote panel

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court is accepting applications and recommendations for two persons to fill upcoming vacancies on the Missouri Elections Commission.

The terms of two commissioners, Chairman David Blanton of Sikeston and former Chairman Sam Murphy of Kirkwood, will expire on Dec. 31.

Chief Justice Robert Seiler said the court will submit the names of six nominees for the commission to the governor, who will select two of them to serve on the board.

The appointments are subject to confirmation by the state Senate.

The commission, which was established by law on Jan. 1, 1975, is charged with implementing the state's Campaign Finance and Disclosure law.

Nation gives first swine flu shots today

Associated Press Writer

America "rolled up its sleeves" today for the first swine flu shots, the largest immunization program in the nation's history. But some state health officials said they were uncertain when and whether they would get all the vaccine they need.

The national Center for Disease Control said the first shots would be given "officially" at a health fair in Indianapolis, but they were scheduled also for at least one other state. Patients at the Maristhill Nursing Home in Waltham, a Boston suburb, were to get the first of the vaccine in Massachusetts.

"The first priority will be with the high risk — such as people in nursing homes, the chronically sick and diseased," said Dr. Stuart H. Shapiro, deputy director of the state Department of Health.

An Associated Press survey of state health officials showed that most of them said they had initial shipments of vaccine from companies contracted by the federal government. Some complained that their allocations arrived piecemeal, and many were worried that future irregular shipments might prevent continued orderly administration.

Congress allocated $135 million for manufacture and nationwide distribution of the vaccine, and the Atlanta-based CDC made sure that initial shipments of it got to pickup points.

A spokesman at the CDC said the federal center expects 177 million doses will be available at state health departments by late November, with more of it being manufactured. About 25 million doses have been shipped to states so far, he said.

In Wisconsin, there were 100,000 doses on hand and an additional 410,000 doses were expected by week's end. However, William Schatz of the state Department of Health and Social Services predicted that much of the vaccine would arrive too late to do any good.

He cited an estimate that Dec. 15 is the last day a person can take the vaccine and expect it to be effective in preventing the flu, which has been traced to the same disease that killed 500,000 Americans in 1918-19.

According to the present delivery schedule, Wisconsin will have less than two-thirds of its promised 4.1 million doses by then, he said.

The massive imunization campaign was prompted by an outbreak of swine flu at Ford Dix, N.J., last winter. Eleven army recruits became ill with the disease early last January. Doctors at the University of Virginia Hospital have reported that a 55-year-old radio announcer from New York also contracted the disease, possibly from another human.

Flu experts who have supported the inoculations say they don't expect a second flare-up of swine flu before late fall or early winter.

The immunization project was launched by President Ford and adopted as its slogan "Roll Up Your Sleeves, America."

It was delayed until Congress agreed to relieve the four vaccine manufacturers and states of insurance liability for the mass immunization.

Although legislation to do that went into effect today, most states have delayed administering the vaccine until mid-October, or later.

Filibuster stalls adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the 94th Congress works to wind up its work, the Senate is facing the threat of a filibuster that could kill legislation extending the deadline for auto makers to meet tough exhaust standards.

Sen. Jake Garn's pledge to talk all night and into next week to prevent a vote on the bill could delay final congressional adjournment. Both the House and Senate hoped to conclude business today and adjourn for the year to allow time for some political campaigning.

Garn, a Utah Republican, wants tokill legislation that would give a one-year delay, until the 1979 model year, for auto makers to reduce car emissions of carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons. Prohibitions against "significant deterioration" of air quality in relatively smog-free areas of the country are also included.

Garn claimed the auto industry needs a longer postponement and that the other provision would impede economic growth.

The bill is the product of a House-Senate compromise following two years of congressional hearings. The House may take up the proposal today if it clears the Senate.

The Senate is also to consider a doubling of the unemployment tax on employers and extending jobless benefits to all state and local government workers. The House must also vote on the bill.

The House plans to debate and vote on a grain standards bill designed to halt the abuses of the federal grain inspection program uncovered in recent investigations.

The House may also consider a resolution offered by Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., seeking the expulsion of Rep. Andrew Hinshaw, R-Calif., because of Hinshaw's bribery conviction.

On Thursday, Congress overrode President Ford's veto of a $56.5-billion appropriations bill and passed an extension of the revenue-sharing program that Ford has promised to sign.

The appropriations money is for the departments of labor and health, education and welfare. Ford had objected because the proposal was $4 billion more than he had requested for the agencies.

The final version, which Congress enacted with the override votes, contains a limitation on the use of federal money for abortions except where the life of the woman is endangered.

The $25.5-billion revenue-sharing compromise would return federal tax money to states, counties and local government units through 1980. Ford had linked passage of this bill with his action on two jobs bills. One would provide $3.7 billion in public works jobs and the other would extend 260,000 public service jobs in state and local governments.

The President announced that he would sign both bills after the revenue-sharing measure passed.

He also said he would accept ansecond version of legislation authorizing $3.3 billion for construction at military basesand other milctary facilities. He vetoed an earlier version because it contained provisions that would have delayed for a year any actions to close or realign major military installations.

Congress took these other actions Thursday:

LAW ENFORCEMENT

The House and Senate passed and sent to the President a three-year, $2.5-billion extension of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, the program designed to help state and local governments fight crime. Some $15 million a year would be set aside for community anticrime programs.

This bill also limits an FBI director's service to a single 10-year term.

COPYRIGHT

Congress approved a substantial revision of U.S. copyright law, the first such revision since 1909. The measure, which now goes to President Ford for action, gives authors and composers copyright protection for their lifetimes plus 50 years. The current maximum term of a copyright is 56 years. Sponsors said the updating was necessary because of technological developments like radio and television, computer storage and copying machines.

Scott County gets first flu serum

BENTON— Arrival of the first shipment of swine flu serum was received in Scott County Thursday, Warren Manning, administrator of the Scott County Health Department, said today.

Manning said the shipment of 660 doses would be distributed today, with nursing homes and hospitals receiving first priority and the balance being distributed to doctors.

The serum bi-valent type is for persons 65 years of age or older and the chronically ill, Manning stated.

The first shipment was not expected in Scott County until Oct. 12, but Manning said the shipment arrived earlier than scheduled.

When asked when the next shipment of serum would arrive, Manning said he has received no word as to when Scott County can expect another shipment or what type of serum will be available.

The inoculation program has been slowed by the question of liability coverage for persons administering the vaccine, and manufacture of the vaccine was delayed several months before Congress passed a law making the federal government liable for any damages resulting from use of the vaccine.

The law passed by Congress protects persons administering the vaccine from liability only if the person does not charge for the inoculation, Manning said, and the patient signs a consent card.

James E. Donoho, state immunization director, says Missouri should have enough vaccine available by Christmas to take care of everyone who should get a shot, if everything goes as planned.

Nixon didn't write set of love letters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. postal inspection service says Richard Nixon didn't write a set of "love letters" that have been attributed to him. But officials have not said who did.

"A handwriting analysis has determined that the letters were not written by Mr. Nixon or any of the other individuals who were known to possess copies of them," Chief Inspector C. Neil Benson wrote Nixon's lawyer Herbert Miller in a letter Miller released Thursday.

New York literary agent Scott Meredith announced June 3 that he had an unauthenticated set of love letters supposedly written by Nixon to an unnamed woman during the last days of his presidency.

News reports at the time said there were between four and 22 letters.

Four experts had verified that the letters, which were written on legal pads, were in Nixon's handwriting, Meredith claimed. But a Nixon aide, Col. Jack Brennan, called the letters a "sordid hoax."

Benson said the letters apparently originated in Washington and were passed to persons in Detroit and Los Angeles before reaching Meredith.

"The Inspection Service was able to trace the letters back as far as a Washington salesman, now deceased, who apparently knew the letters were a hoax but who did not himself write them," Benson wrote.

"It has been concluded that the persons to whom the letters passed subsequently did not know them to be forgeries and had no intent to defraud," Benson said. "Therefore, the postal service has closed its investigation with a determination that no prosecution is warranted."

Heckemeyer's appeal denied

According to attorneys for Judge Marshall Craig of Sikeston, a motion to set aside a decision by the Missouri Court of Appeals, Springfield District, filed by Tony Heckemeyer of Sikeston with the Missouri Supreme Court in Jefferson City, was denied today, and the Appeals Court decision stands.

The Appeals court had ruled Sept. 24 that Stanley A. Grimm of Cape Girardeau, judge of the 32nd Judicial Circuit, would permanently refrain from hearing a petition contesting the results of the Aug. 3 primary election, in which Craig defeated Heckemeyer for judge of the 33rd Judicial Circuit by 12 votes.

DID CHAIRMAN MAO RENOUNCE COMMUNISM?

President Gerald Ford, in his televised eulogy for recently departed Comrad Mao Tse-tung had some rather puzzling things to say. Among them: "Chairman Mao ushered in a new era of peace and friendship with the United States."

First off, most people familiar with history have the distinct impression that the Chinese leader who did in fact "usher in a new era of peace and friendship" between the Chinese people and the USA was Generalisimo Chiang Kai-shek. It was Chiang who from that time on remained a staunch and unflinching ally of the United States and the free world with a steadfastness which has been maintained by the Free Chinese to this day.

On the other hand, Chairman Mao has just as consistently expressed his hatred toward the free world, and he has never hesitated to kill and imprison Americans when he felt it would be beneficial to Communism to do so.

Mao has furthermore made it vividly clear that he is a committed, dedicated Marxist- Leninist of the Stalinist school. "It was Marx and Engels ... who created the great theory of dialectical materialism," he exults. "Later Linin and Stalin further developed this great theory." ("On Contradiction" by Mao, page 9).

"It is very important to know this situation," Mao declares (page 60). "It enables us to understand that in a class society revolutions and revolutionary wars are inevitable, that apart from them the leap in social development (i.e., from freedom to communism) cannot be made, the reactionary ruling classes cannot be overthrown, and the people cannot win political power. Communists must expose the deceitful propaganda of the reactionaries that social revolution is unnecessary, impossible, etc., and firmly uphold the Marxist- Leninist theory of social revolution." Mao also made it clear that a "social revolution" would be peaceful. "Political power," he declared, "grows out of the barrel of a gun."

Did Comrade Mao, in secret meetings with Mr. Kissinger, renounce what he had written in his book, "On Contradiction"?

If Mao did not do so, then we must assume that he was and continued to be a Marxist- Leninist right up to his death; which means that, as a Communist, under no circumstances was it possible for him to believe in a lasting "peace and friendship" with any capitalist country, much less the United States.

The puzzle remains. Why did President Ford utter such a misleading and inaccurate statement to the American people?

WILL GOOD MEN DO NOTHING?

An absolutely stunning figure of 70 million voting-age Americans is planning to boycott this year's presidential election. Only a little less stunning is the fact that as many as 10 million of them are regular voters who have "dropped out" of the electoral process.

These are the preliminary findings of a nationwide survey conducted by Peter D. Hart Research Associates of Washington and sponsored by the University of Denver and the bipartisan Committee for the Study of the American Electorate.

The statistics further indicate that the total presidential vote may not reach 70 million this year (it was nearly 78 million in 1972), which could mean that we may actually see a majority of eligible voters sitting out the 1976 presidential contest.

"Disillusionment," "disaffection," "distrust" are the words the pollsters use to describe the phenomenon, and the attitudes cut across all age groups.

Although the survey found that 46 per cent of the nonvoters are under age 35, the dropouts, who once voted frequently but have since become estranged from politics, tend to be older, more educated, more affluent and yet even more alienated than other nonvoters.

There are, unquestionably, plenty of reasons to be disatisfied with the way the country is being run, from the local level on up. Crime, inflation, unemployment, the plight of the cities, the official lying during the Vietnam war, Watergate, recurrent scandals in Washington—all have contributed to the erosion of our trust and confidence in both our elected and appointed officials.

But what do these movements want—a certified savior, without human foibles and with absolute answers to all our problems, who sill singlehandedly turn the country around and straighten it out?

If so, they can contemplate a long wait.

Perhaps they look for another Abraham Lincoln, who comes closest to sainthood of any American president. But even Lincoln was far from universally loved in his lifetime. In the midst of the Civil War, he managed to defeat the incompetent Gen. George McClellan by only 400,000 votes out of four million cast.

How many nonvoters called down a plague on both candidates in the election of 1864?

It is interesting to note that when they were asked to name the political figures in their own lifetimes they admired most, the nonvoters in the survey listed John F. Kennedy (50 per cent), Franklin D. Roosevelt (20 per cent) and Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman (10 per cent).

Each of these men had shortcomings and deficiencies as great or greater than those of the candidates of 1976, whom some 62 per cent of the alienated nonvoters indicate are not "worth voting for."

Each of them was a "politician" in both the worst and best senses of the word.

And each of them was opposed, distrusted, even hated, by large portions of the electorate.

The nonvoters either have very short memories or they are letting their discontent with the present turn the past into some sort of Golden Age that never existed. But it is what their opting out of America's electoral life may mean for the future of this country that should give us pause.

As the researchers themselves ask, will the baby-boom generation of Americans now well arrived at voting age be assimilated into the political system, or will they become a "lost generation" in terms of nonparticipation in politics, which for better or worse is the lifeblood of a democracy?

If so, they will—all in the name of virtue—be setting the stage for a form of minority rule that could have pernicious consequences for the Republic.

As Edmund Burke said long ago, the only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing.

FORECASTS AND FOUL-UPS

Government is very much like the weather—everyone complains but no one does anything about it. And the forecast is stormy.

Take pension plans for instance. When Congress passed the Employment Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 it intended to help millions of workers. But the effect of regulation has been so adverse that pension plans are now being cancelled by the thousands.

According to the Pension Benefit Guarantee Corp., 5,000 employer pension plans have been terminated. In many instances the cost of meeting new requirements is just too much, especially for small businesses.

Consider the case of a Pennsylvania employer whose profit sharing plan contained $15,000 in assets. He had to pay a lawyer $1,000—equal to a year's contributions—for the necessary amendments.

Whether many pension plans will weather the tempest is uncertain.

Then there's the food stamp law, which originally had the worthy purpose of using huge surpluses of grains and other foodstuffs to feed needy Americans. In less than a decade, it has been perverted to a $5 billion program for feeding strikers, college students and others with financial resources greater than those truly in need.

Unlike our problem with the weather, we can and should do something about government. Through our votes and letters to our representatives in government, we can insist that care and foresight be used in designing laws, and more oversight exercised to ensure that government programs don't take on unplanned and undesirable lives of their own.

TAXES DEVOUR GROCERY PROFITS

The $130 billion burden imposed on business and taxpayers to keep records, file reports and comply with government regulations would be enough to give every man, woman and child in the country free groceries for a year and still leave some change left over.

That's what William S. Mitchell, president of Safeway Stores, Inc., told a recent stockholders' meeting.

In attacking government regulation and tax policies, he charged that new Securities and Exchange Commission rules will force his company to spend money preparing a "make believe" report on the current replacement costs of assets.

Mr. Mitchell also said that government is a "senior partner in our business" and "earned $10.21 per share (in taxes) on its zero investment in the company while stockholders received $1.90 a share.

"Does that strike you as fair?" he asked.

He added that Safeway's earnings over half a century are equivalent to what Congress appropriates for spending in just 28 hours.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

SOLZHENITSYN AND BELENKO

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

Two exciting events occurred recently that confirm that the rest of the world still believes the United States is the best country to live in.

On Sept. 9 it was announced that Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn, the great Russian Nobel Prize-winning writer, has moved from Switzerland to Vermont, where he bought a home. He has received a permanent visa to live in America.

Switzerland, where he was living after being expelled from the Soviet Union, now has the highest per capita wealth in the world, while the United States has dropped to a tie for fourth place.

The Swiss are famous for their low crime rate, the absence of political corruption, a balanced national budget and the scenic beauty of their countryside. It is very complimentary that Solzhenitsyn has chosen to move from Switzerland to our country.

On the same day as the Solzhenitsyn announcement, Lt. Viktor Belenko, a young Soviet fighter pilot, arrived in Honolulu on his way from Japan to live in mainland United States. Three days earlier, Belenko had flown the latest and best Soviet fighter plane, the MIG-25, to northern Japan from Vladivostok.

This twin-jet fighter plane was described by our secretary of the Air Force, Robert C. Seamans, as "probably the best interceptor in production in the world today."

Japanese aviation experts describe this MIG-25 as "the most advanced fighter of the Sovet air force."

Japanese and American aviation engineers are now eagerly inspecting the plane in minute detail in an effort to discover the Soviet secrets that enable the plane to fly so much faster than our best fighter planes.

Of particular importance to U.S. and Japanese technicians examining the Soviet plane are its two 24,250-pound thrust engines, and its electronic countermeasures and counter-countermeasurers equipment which the Soviets have developed and are now deploying on advanced Soviet combat aircraft.

Belenko's flight to freedom provides new and dramatic proof of the high risks that individuals will gake to escape from communism when they get the chance.

His escape was very hazardous because he was on a patrol flight under the constant surveillance of another Soviet MIG-25. To lose his escort, Belenko feigned engine trouble and slowed his supersonic jet, while the escort plane continuously circled above him. When the escort plane was too low on gasoline to follow, Belenko suddenly accelerated and headed for Japan.

Even then his flight was a daredevil risk. The first Japanese airport he reached was fogged in. The second airport he found had too short a runway, but Belenko managed to land this plane safely anyway, despite being almost out of fuel.

Belenko's thrilling flight to freedom ranks with Madame Oksana Kosenkina's leap to freedom from the upper floor of the Soviet consulate in New York City in 1948, with Simas Kudirka's attempted jump to freedom from a Soviet fishing vessel to a Coast Guiard ship off the coast of Massachusetts in 1970, and with the daring dive to freedom from the deck of a Russian ship near Florida in 1970 by East German engineer Karl Bley.

If Jimmy the Greek had been taking bets on the success of any of those escapes, it is unlikely that he would have gottten any takers. It is thrilling to note that such successful and intelligent individuals are willing to pay so high a price for a chance to enjoy the precious freedom we all take for granted in America.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Last Giant:
Inside Story of George Meany's 'Retirement'

WASHINGTON — After the 82-year-old Mao there's only the 82-year-old George Meany. If there are other giants I haven't run into them during many years of circling the "prime-minister circuit." I'll wager neither has the jet-streaming Henry Kissinger.

AFL-CIO president Meany is a world power because he represents -- perhaps rules is the juicier word – an empire both visible and transparent. His power doesn't spring from his crustiness; nor from waving his magic never-ending cigars nor from his fabulous Irish wit.

Perhaps he himself put it best when he confided from a hospital sick bed to his physician, that the powerful AFL-CIO exists for three reasons:

— To deal collectively in the name of all labor directly with the nation's executive branch.

— To exert strong influence, perhaps control, of the Congress.

— To fight in the federal courts.

But, said Meany to his doctor, for hours in an expansively confidential mood, the most vital role a united AFL-CIO must play is to deal directly and off-the-record, through a single strong central voice, with the President of the U.S. And that voice is his. The movement must have the political strength to back this up.

Thus did Meany explain -- perhaps justify would be the more accurate word – the pragmatic theory behind the enormous power he has concentrated in his eighth floor suite "on 16th Street."

And so his retention of -- or retirement from – the AFL-CIO presidency at this moment become stories of international as well as domestic significance.

Well, now some of the latter-day observers of this scene are saying that Meany indicated over the tube the other Sunday that he would probably retire in a few months. To this there is a very definite answer and I believe a very definite date. But first, the answer from Meany himself, spoken some time ago:

"When I reach the point where I feel I can't do my job, I am going to retire. When I reach the point where I think the people who run the international unions think I should retire, I will retire. When I reach the point where my health gets to the point I can't do my owrk, I will retire."

That's as straight an answer as Meany truthfully can give. It's a medical, not a political, question today. But I do believe, as do the informed in labor's high command and in national headquarters, that during the first week of December 1977, when his term expires at the 12th Biennial AFL-CIO Convention in Los Angeles, George Meany will retire. He will not wait, as many say, to be "carried out."

Curmudgeon president Meany is devoted to power. But his devotion to his movement is supreme. He doesn't want it led by an ailing man. Physically, he's not well. His voice is bad, his pallor unhealthy, his hip pained, his chest in difficulties, but his mind is such he could earn his dollars writing Bob Hope's routines.

During the days after the now famed Sunday TV interview, he worked regularly in his office; participated in a highly confidential top level gathering of a handful of national labor and business leaders bipartisanly preparing for the next president however he'll be; attended a stag affair at the Norwegian embassy and met foreign delegatons. He acted as he always does -- as the head of a sovereign force with worldwide, as well as domestic, power.

So, permit me to point out to those who aren't licensed Meany-watchers the full significance of the Sunday broadcast in which he retorted to a questioner:

"No, I certainly wouldn't want to try to name my successor, and frankly, the answer is I don't know, and I could guess but I won't ... I've not set any date for retirement, but I want to say, very frankly, that I've given a little more thought to retirement since my recent illness than I had before. But I still haven't set a date and I still feel fairly well."

The significance here to insiders is that Meany, the only AFL-CIO president in its 21-year history, with these words gave realistic hopefuls and pretenders THE signal.

It's okay now for them to maneuver, make alliances and deals for the powerful office. This is what all the behind-the-scenes turbulence, scuttlebutt and confidential parleying are all about. As for whom Meany could "guess,"' the guessing picks the 54-year-old AFL-CIO secretary- treasurer Lane Kirkland.

He's a good wordsmith. An in-house intellectual. His strength is in his weakness. He has no bloc from which to be knocked off. Many of his strong challengers may well neutralize themselves. Lane, the "progressive," will be a caretaker president. The movement will decentralize. Everybody will be in business for themselves. That, barring an act of God, is the script.

Actually these days Meany worries more over losing weight and his cigars than losing his office.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

IRS Flooded by Tax Forms

by Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- The federal establishment is so inundated with government forms that the bureaucrats simply can't keep up with all the paperwork. The loss in paper alone is staggering. But additional billions are swept out with the waste paper.

It costs the taxpayers at least $2 billion a year, for example, because the Internal Revenue Service is too swamped with paperwork to cross-check tax returns with income reporting forms.

Like most government agencies, the IRS issues forms right and left. But what happens to all the forms that the harassed citizens are required to fill out? Many of them, according to an unreleased congressional report, are "routinely destroyed by IRS without examination."

Every year, half a billion income reporting forms flood into IRS offices. Most are those familiar W-2 forms that list the wages earned by employes. But the annual deluge also includes forms 1087 and 1099, which are used to report income from dividends, interest, rents and royalties.

By comparing these forms with income tax returns, the IRS can identify tax cheaters. Every tax chiseler who is caught saves the money of the honest taxpayers.

Yet the House Monetary Affairs subcommittee, headed by Rep. Ben Rosenthal, D.-N.Y., has found that the IRS routinely ignores the income-reporting forms. "Half of the total forms submitted were destroyed upon receipt," alleges a committee report being prepared for release.

The tax agents have found that they catch more chiselers and enrich the U.S. treasury when they take the time to match the reporting forms against the tax returns. In 1972, for example, regular audits returned $83 in additional taxes for every hour of staff work, but investigators using the matching program recovered $215 per staff hour.

If all income forms were matched with tax returns, according to the congressional study, the federal government could recover at least $2 billion and perhaps as much as $10 billion annually.

Footnote: An IRS spokesman said it is difficult to assess the amount of extra revenue that would be generated by a matching program. It is "a hard thing to define exactly to the dollar," he said. The IRS hopes to have a complete matching program in operation within two years, he added.

SOUTH AFRICAN INCIDENT: American corporations have invested $1.6 billion in South Africa, and they are quick to justify the huge outlay with the claim that they have provided jobs and raised the living standard for the country's black majority.

Sen. Dick Clark, D.-Iowa, who chairs the Senate subcommittee on Africa, doesn't fully believe the line the corporations are handing out. He is investigating allegations that American firms are making big bucks by taking advantage of South Africa's apartheid policies.

For example, one giant multinational company, Lummus Corporation, planned to capitalize on South African apartheid if it were awarded a major construction contract.

Internal documents, intended for corporate officials' eyes only, spell out how Lummus expected to reduce labor costs by hiring large numbers of South African blacks. The firm also planned to construct separate and unequal housing, dining and recreation facilities for blacks and whites who worked on the project. Here are the details:

In 1974, Lummus submitted a bid to South Africa's white regime for a $1 billion contract to build a plant for converting coal to gas by an innovative process known as Sasol II. Lummus, it turned out, never got the job.

But the company drew up an intricate proposal designed to take advantage of South Africa's cheap black labor. "The objectives of this plan," states one draft document, "are to maximize the economic participation of South African labor ... and to construct the new facilities with quality workmanship at the lowest practical cost."

A "key element" of the proposal was a "training program for black workers, which are in adequate supply in the Republic of South Africa." The use of blacks, it was anticipated, would "result in substantial reduction in the average rand-hr. paid for skilled labor."

Another confidential document outlines Lummus' plans for building separate "townships" for blacks and whites. The proposed township for 1,140 European whites, the plan states, should encompass an area of approximately 10 square miles and consist exclusively of three- and-four-bedroom homes.

The black township, on the other hand, would be planned to accommodate seven times more blacks in an area half the size of the white township. It would initially consist, in part, of apartment dwellings, "in barracks form to accommodate nine blacks per room."

Dining and recreation facilities for whites and blacks also would have differed markedly.

Footnote: A Lummus spokesman said the proposals were drawn up specifically to conform with "requirements of local law" in South Africa.

LITTLE GUYS: In full-page ads, the companies who plan to mine and drill the ocean bottoms are complaining about a congressional amendment that would slow the pace of exploration.

They claim that "because we're the little guys," the amendment may go through. Whatever the merits of their views, the dishonesty of their ad makes their case suspect.

Among the self-styled "little guys" signing the ad in tiny type at the bottom are subsidiaries of Alcoa, Bethlehem Steel, ITT Lockheed, TRW and such independent giants as Brown and Root, Hughes Tool, Magnavox, Raytheon, Summa and Teledyne.

In fact, the National Ocean Industries Association, which sponsored the ad, has Exxon, Gulf, Mobil, Shell and other oil megacompanies among its members and backers. But an association spokesman claimed that no major oil money went into the ad.

The cheapskate asked the bank for the loan of one dollar and was told he would have to pay seven percent interest at the end of the year. For security he put up $50,000 in savings bonds.

At the end of the year, he paid his seven cents and took another dollar loan. When asked why he wanted to again borrow only one dollar, he replied, "Do you know any other way I can get the use of a safe deposit box for seven cents a year?"

WILL GOOD MEN DO NOTHING?

An absolutely stunning figure of 70 million voting-age Americans is planning to boycott this year's presidential election. Only a little less stunning is the fact that as many as 10 million of them are regular voters who have "dropped out" of the electoral process.

These are the preliminary findings of a nationwide survey conducted by Peter D. Hart Research Associates of Washington and sponsored by the University of Denver and the bipartisan Committee for the Study of the American Electorate.

The statistics further indicate that the total presidential vote may not reach 70 million this year (it was nearly 78 million in 1972), which could mean that we may actually see a majority of eligible voters sitting out the 1976 presidential contest.

"Disillusionment," "disaffection," "distrust" are the words the pollsters use to describe the phenomenon, and the attitudes cut across all age groups.

Although the survey found that 46 per cent of the nonvoters are under age 35, the dropouts, who once voted frequently but have since become estranged from politics, tend to be older, more educated, more affluent and yet even more alienated than other nonvoters.

There are, unquestionably, plenty of reasons to be disatisfied with the way the country is being run, from the local level on up. Crime, inflation, unemployment, the plight of the cities, the official lying during the Vietnam war, Watergate, recurrent scandals in Washington—all have contributed to the erosion of our trust and confidence in both our elected and appointed officials.

But what do these movements want—a certified savior, without human foibles and with absolute answers to all our problems, who sill singlehandedly turn the country around and straighten it out?

If so, they can contemplate a long wait.

Perhaps they look for another Abraham Lincoln, who comes closest to sainthood of any American president. But even Lincoln was far from universally loved in his lifetime. In the midst of the Civil War, he managed to defeat the incompetent Gen. George McClellan by only 400,000 votes out of four million cast.

How many nonvoters called down a plague on both candidates in the election of 1864?

It is interesting to note that when they were asked to name the political figures in their own lifetimes they admired most, the nonvoters in the survey listed John F. Kennedy (50 per cent), Franklin D. Roosevelt (20 per cent) and Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman (10 per cent).

Each of these men had shortcomings and deficiencies as great or greater than those of the candidates of 1976, whom some 62 per cent of the alienated nonvoters indicate are not "worth voting for."

Each of them was a "politician" in both the worst and best senses of the word.

And each of them was opposed, distrusted, even hated, by large portions of the electorate.

The nonvoters either have very short memories or they are letting their discontent with the present turn the past into some sort of Golden Age that never existed. But it is what their opting out of America's electoral life may mean for the future of this country that should give us pause.

As the researchers themselves ask, will the baby-boom generation of Americans now well arrived at voting age be assimilated into the political system, or will they become a "lost generation" in terms of nonparticipation in politics, which for better or worse is the lifeblood of a democracy?

If so, they will—all in the name of virtue—be setting the stage for a form of minority rule that could have pernicious consequences for the Republic.

As Edmund Burke said long ago, the only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing.

FORECASTS AND FOUL-UPS

Government is very much like the weather—everyone complains but no one does anything about it. And the forecast is stormy.

Take pension plans for instance. When Congress passed the Employment Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 it intended to help millions of workers. But the effect of regulation has been so adverse that pension plans are now being cancelled by the thousands.

According to the Pension Benefit Guarantee Corp., 5,000 employer pension plans have been terminated. In many instances the cost of meeting new requirements is just too much, especially for small businesses.

Consider the case of a Pennsylvania employer whose profit sharing plan contained $15,000 in assets. He had to pay a lawyer $1,000—equal to a year's contributions—for the necessary amendments.

Whether many pension plans will weather the tempest is uncertain.

Then there's the food stamp law, which originally had the worthy purpose of using huge surpluses of grains and other foodstuffs to feed needy Americans. In less than a decade, it has been perverted to a $5 billion program for feeding strikers, college students and others with financial resources greater than those truly in need.

Unlike our problem with the weather, we can and should do something about government. Through our votes and letters to our representatives in government, we can insist that care and foresight be used in designing laws, and more oversight exercised to ensure that government programs don't take on unplanned and undesirable lives of their own.

TAXES DEVOUR GROCERY PROFITS

The $130 billion burden imposed on business and taxpayers to keep records, file reports and comply with government regulations would be enough to give every man, woman and child in the country free groceries for a year and still leave some change left over.

That's what William S. Mitchell, president of Safeway Stores, Inc., told a recent stockholders' meeting.

In attacking government regulation and tax policies, he charged that new Securities and Exchange Commission rules will force his company to spend money preparing a "make believe" report on the current replacement costs of assets.

Mr. Mitchell also said that government is a "senior partner in our business" and "earned $10.21 per share (in taxes) on its zero investment in the company while stockholders received $1.90 a share.

"Does that strike you as fair?" he asked.

He added that Safeway's earnings over half a century are equivalent to what Congress appropriates for spending in just 28 hours.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

SOLZHENITSYN AND BELENKO

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

Two exciting events occurred recently that confirm that the rest of the world still believes the United States is the best country to live in.

On Sept. 9 it was announced that Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn, the great Russian Nobel Prize-winning writer, has moved from Switzerland to Vermont, where he bought a home. He has received a permanent visa to live in America.

Switzerland, where he was living after being expelled from the Soviet Union, now has the highest per capita wealth in the world, while the United States has dropped to a tie for fourth place.

The Swiss are famous for their low crime rate, the absence of political corruption, a balanced national budget and the scenic beauty of their countryside. It is very complimentary that Solzhenitsyn has chosen to move from Switzerland to our country.

On the same day as the Solzhenitsyn announcement, Lt. Viktor Belenko, a young Soviet fighter pilot, arrived in Honolulu on his way from Japan to live in mainland United States. Three days earlier, Belenko had flown the latest and best Soviet fighter plane, the MIG-25, to northern Japan from Vladivostok.

This twin-jet fighter plane was described by our secretary of the Air Force, Robert C. Seamans, as "probably the best interceptor in production in the world today."

Japanese aviation experts describe this MIG-25 as "the most advanced fighter of the Sovet air force."

Japanese and American aviation engineers are now eagerly inspecting the plane in minute detail in an effort to discover the Soviet secrets that enable the plane to fly so much faster than our best fighter planes.

Of particular importance to U.S. and Japanese technicians examining the Soviet plane are its two 24,250-pound thrust engines, and its electronic countermeasures and counter-countermeasurers equipment which the Soviets have developed and are now deploying on advanced Soviet combat aircraft.

Belenko's flight to freedom provides new and dramatic proof of the high risks that individuals will gake to escape from communism when they get the chance.

His escape was very hazardous because he was on a patrol flight under the constant surveillance of another Soviet MIG-25. To lose his escort, Belenko feigned engine trouble and slowed his supersonic jet, while the escort plane continuously circled above him. When the escort plane was too low on gasoline to follow, Belenko suddenly accelerated and headed for Japan.

Even then his flight was a daredevil risk. The first Japanese airport he reached was fogged in. The second airport he found had too short a runway, but Belenko managed to land this plane safely anyway, despite being almost out of fuel.

Belenko's thrilling flight to freedom ranks with Madame Oksana Kosenkina's leap to freedom from the upper floor of the Soviet consulate in New York City in 1948, with Simas Kudirka's attempted jump to freedom from a Soviet fishing vessel to a Coast Guiard ship off the coast of Massachusetts in 1970, and with the daring dive to freedom from the deck of a Russian ship near Florida in 1970 by East German engineer Karl Bley.

If Jimmy the Greek had been taking bets on the success of any of those escapes, it is unlikely that he would have gottten any takers. It is thrilling to note that such successful and intelligent individuals are willing to pay so high a price for a chance to enjoy the precious freedom we all take for granted in America.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Last Giant:
Inside Story of George Meany's 'Retirement'

WASHINGTON — After the 82-year-old Mao there's only the 82-year-old George Meany. If there are other giants I haven't run into them during many years of circling the "prime-minister circuit." I'll wager neither has the jet-streaming Henry Kissinger.

AFL-CIO president Meany is a world power because he represents -- perhaps rules is the juicier word -- an empire both visible and transparent. His power doesn't spring from his crustiness; nor from waving his magic never-ending cigars nor from his fabulous Irish wit.

Perhaps he himself put it best when he confided from a hospital sick bed to his physician, that the powerful AFL-CIO exists for three reasons:

— To deal collectively in the name of all labor directly with the nation's executive branch.

— To exert strong influence, perhaps control, of the Congress.

— To fight in the federal courts.

But, said Meany to his doctor, for hours in an expansively confidential mood, the most vital role a united AFL-CIO must play is to deal directly and off-the-record, through a single strong central voice, with the President of the U.S. And that voice is his. The movement must have the political strength to back this up.

Thus did Meany explain -- perhaps justify would be the more accurate word -- the pragmatic theory behind the enormous power he has concentrated in his eighth floor suite "on 16th Street."

And so his retention of -- or retirement from -- the AFL-CIO presidency at this moment become stories of international as well as domestic significance.

Well, now some of the latter-day observers of this scene are saying that Meany indicated over the tube the other Sunday that he would probably retire in a few months. To this there is a very definite answer and I believe a very definite date. But first, the answer from Meany himself, spoken some time ago:

"When I reach the point where I feel I can't do my job, I am going to retire. When I reach the point where I think the people who run the international unions think I should retire, I will retire. When I reach the point where my health gets to the point I can't do my owrk, I will retire."

That's as straight an answer as Meany truthfully can give. It's a medical, not a political, question today. But I do believe, as do the informed in labor's high command and in national headquarters, that during the first week of December 1977, when his term expires at the 12th Biennial AFL-CIO Convention in Los Angeles, George Meany will retire. He will not wait, as many say, to be "carried out."

Curmudgeon president Meany is devoted to power. But his devotion to his movement is supreme. He doesn't want it led by an ailing man. Physically, he's not well. His voice is bad, his pallor unhealthy, his hip pained, his chest in difficulties, but his mind is such he could earn his dollars writing Bob Hope's routines.

During the days after the now famed Sunday TV interview, he worked regularly in his office; participated in a highly confidential top level gathering of a handful of national labor and business leaders bipartisanly preparing for the next president however he'll be; attended a stag affair at the Norwegian embassy and met foreign delegatons. He acted as he always does -- as the head of a sovereign force with worldwide, as well as domestic, power.

So, permit me to point out to those who aren't licensed Meany-watchers the full significance of the Sunday broadcast in which he retorted to a questioner:

"No, I certainly wouldn't want to try to name my successor, and frankly, the answer is I don't know, and I could guess but I won't ... I've not set any date for retirement, but I want to say, very frankly, that I've given a little more thought to retirement since my recent illness than I had before. But I still haven't set a date and I still feel fairly well."

The significance here to insiders is that Meany, the only AFL-CIO president in its 21-year history, with these words gave realistic hopefuls and pretenders THE signal.

It's okay now for them to maneuver, make alliances and deals for the powerful office. This is what all the behind-the-scenes turbulence, scuttlebutt and confidential parleying are all about. As for whom Meany could "guess," the guessing picks the 54-year-old AFL-CIO secretary- treasurer Lane Kirkland.

He's a good wordsmith. An in-house intellectual. His strength is in his weakness. He has no bloc from which to be knocked off. Many of his strong challengers may well neutralize themselves. Lane, the "progressive," will be a caretaker president. The movement will decentralize. Everybody will be in business for themselves. That, barring an act of God, is the script.

Actually these days Meany worries more over losing weight and his cigars than losing his office.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

IRS Flooded by Tax Forms

by Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- The federal establishment is so inundated with government forms that the bureaucrats simply can't keep up with all the paperwork. The loss in paper alone is staggering. But additional billions are swept out with the waste paper.

It costs the taxpayers at least $2 billion a year, for example, because the Internal Revenue Service is too swamped with paperwork to cross-check tax returns with income reporting forms.

Like most government agencies, the IRS issues forms right and left. But what happens to all the forms that the harassed citizens are required to fill out? Many of them, according to an unreleased congressional report, are "routinely destroyed by IRS without examination."

Every year, half a billion income reporting forms flood into IRS offices. Most are those familiar W-2 forms that list the wages earned by employes. But the annual deluge also includes forms 1087 and 1099, which are used to report income from dividends, interest, rents and royalties.

By comparing these forms with income tax returns, the IRS can identify tax cheaters. Every tax chiseler who is caught saves the money of the honest taxpayers.

Yet the House Monetary Affairs subcommittee, headed by Rep. Ben Rosenthal, D.-N.Y., has found that the IRS routinely ignores the income-reporting forms. "Half of the total forms submitted were destroyed upon receipt," alleges a committee report being prepared for release.

The tax agents have found that they catch more chiselers and enrich the U.S. treasury when they take the time to match the reporting forms against the tax returns. In 1972, for example, regular audits returned $83 in additional taxes for every hour of staff work, but investigators using the matching program recovered $215 per staff hour.

If all income forms were matched with tax returns, according to the congressional study, the federal government could recover at least $2 billion and perhaps as much as $10 billion annually.

Footnote: An IRS spokesman said it is difficult to assess the amount of extra revenue that would be generated by a matching program. It is "a hard thing to define exactly to the dollar," he said. The IRS hopes to have a complete matching program in operation within two years, he added.

SOUTH AFRICAN INCIDENT: American corporations have invested $1.6 billion in South Africa, and they are quick to justify the huge outlay with the claim that they have provided jobs and raised the living standard for the country's black majority.

Sen. Dick Clark, D.-Iowa, who chairs the Senate subcommittee on Africa, doesn't fully believe the line the corporations are handing out. He is investigating allegations that American firms are making big bucks by taking advantage of South Africa's apartheid policies.

For example, one giant multinational company, Lummus Corporation, planned to capitalize on South African apartheid if it were awarded a major construction contract.

Internal documents, intended for corporate officials' eyes only, spell out how Lummus expected to reduce labor costs by hiring large numbers of South African blacks. The firm also planned to construct separate and unequal housing, dining and recreation facilities for blacks and whites who worked on the project. Here are the details:

In 1974, Lummus submitted a bid to South Africa's white regime for a $1 billion contract to build a plant for converting coal to gas by an innovative process known as Sasol II. Lummus, it turned out, never got the job.

But the company drew up an intricate proposal designed to take advantage of South Africa's cheap black labor. "The objectives of this plan," states one draft document, "are to maximize the economic participation of South African labor ... and to construct the new facilities with quality workmanship at the lowest practical cost."

A "key element" of the proposal was a "training program for black workers, which are in adequate supply in the Republic of South Africa." The use of blacks, it was anticipated, would "result in substantial reduction in the average rand-hr. paid for skilled labor."

Another confidential document outlines Lummus' plans for building separate "townships" for blacks and whites. The proposed township for 1,140 European whites, the plan states, should encompass an area of approximately 10 square miles and consist exclusively of three- and-four-bedroom homes.

The black township, on the other hand, would be planned to accommodate seven times more blacks in an area half the size of the white township. It would initially consist, in part, of apartment dwellings, "in barracks form to accommodate nine blacks per room."

Dining and recreation facilities for whites and blacks also would have differed markedly.

Footnote: A Lummus spokesman said the proposals were drawn up specifically to conform with "requirements of local law" in South Africa.

LITTLE GUYS: In full-page ads, the companies who plan to mine and drill the ocean bottoms are complaining about a congressional amendment that would slow the pace of exploration.

They claim that "because we're the little guys," the amendment may go through. Whatever the merits of their views, the dishonesty of their ad makes their case suspect.

Among the self-styled "little guys" signing the ad in tiny type at the bottom are subsidiaries of Alcoa, Bethlehem Steel, ITT Lockheed, TRW and such independent giants as Brown and Root, Hughes Tool, Magnavox, Raytheon, Summa and Teledyne.

In fact, the National Ocean Industries Association, which sponsored the ad, has Exxon, Gulf, Mobil, Shell and other oil megacompanies among its members and backers. But an association spokesman claimed that no major oil money went into the ad.

Elvis to perform at SIU

CARBONDALE, Ill. — The SIU Arena announces the first appearance in Southern Illinois for the rock and roll star of stage, screen and television, Elvis Presley. A worldwide legend as well as a versatile and energetic performer, Elvis is set to appear at the SIU Arena Oct. 27 at 8:30 p.m. in one show only.

Tickets will be sold by orders received through the U.S. Postal Service only. Orders will be filled by the order of the earliest postmark. There are no discounts and all persons entering the building will be required to have a ticket.

"We recognize that some of these policies for the show are departures from our standard procedures. But when a performer of the stature of Elvis wants to play at the SIU Arena, you pretty much have to accept their terms," said Jim Abel, acting arena manager.

"There will be a great demand for tickets, and we want to handle the situation as fairly as possible," said Joel Preston, assistant manager at the arena.

"I can only suggest that everyone fill out their mail orders very carefully, and double-check them before sending them. An error in an order (unsigned check, error in mathematics, etc.) could make the difference between getting tickets and not getting tickets for this show. Orders with errors will just have to be sent back to the customer. Time will not permit us to track down each problem order and try to solve it," Preston added.

Mail orders should include the following information: the number and price of tickets desired, check or money order made out to SIU Arena in the correct amount and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The order should be sent to: Elvis Tickets, SIU Arena Manager, Carbondale, Ill., 62901.

If tickets at the prices ordered are no longer available when an individual's order is processed, the next best available tickets will be substituted and the customer will receive a university refund check for the difference in price.

In order to permit as many people to see the show as possible, extra seats behind the stage have been added to the arena's normal north-end stage Focus 9 concert set-up. Since the Elvis show "flies" their sound (i.e., suspends all speakers and electronics above the stage, rather than on the sides of the stage), seats normally blocked by such speakers will also be sold.

There will be approximately 1,200 added seats, so the total tickets available is near 10,200.

"Of course, we are very excited," concluded Preston. "Elvis is an original, a classic. He started it all. Ever since that momentous Sunday night when Ed Sullivan introduced Elvis from the waist up on nationwide television, his strong, expressive, emotional voice has touched countless people."

Malden girl is elected to Girl Scout planning board for area council

MALDEN — Vickie Black of Malden has been elected to the Senior Planning Board of the Cotton Boll Area Girl Scout Council.

Every Senior Girl Scout troop must send two elected representatives to the four or five meetings of the planning board during the year.

Miss Black is a Senior Scout of Troop 110 in Malden. She has been a Girl Scout for 10 years and attended Camp Latonka for a number of years. This summer she graduated from the counselor in training program.

She went to Washington, D.C. in 1974, and has participated in troop trips, camping and projects. Virginia Heise is her troop advisor.

Vickie is a senior at Malden High School, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Black.

On the light side

PLANDOME, N.Y. (AP) — A middle-aged couple says vibrations and noise from Long Island Railroad trains near their home have taken the steam out of their sex life.

While many commuters complain constantly about the railroad's slow pace, George and Ann Marie Montana say the trains' "roaring speeds" have caused them mental and physical problems. Their lawyer, who describes the plaintiffs as "in their late 50s or early 60s," says both his clients are now under a doctor's care trying to get their love life back on the track.

Malden proposes new swimming pool to voters

MALDEN — Malden voters will be asked Nov. 2 to approve a $130,000 bond issue to help finance a new swimming pool to replace the old Air Base pool inherited from the federal government.

Mayor Sparrel Davis said the bond issue will involve an approximate 20-cent tax increase per $100 of assessed property valuation for city residents, or about two mills.

The total outlay for the pool facility will be $260,000, with the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation providing half of the expense.

The Bonds will be financed over a 20-year period. At this time, Davis said, the interest rate the city will have to pay is "negotiable. It'll be the rate of interest at the time we sell the bonds," he stated. The last time the city sold bonds, the mayor continued, it was able to secure an interest rate of approximately 5½ per cent. "Interest rates are down right now," he noted.

Davis says there are "two or three" possible sites for the proposed pool. The Malden Air Base is one, and he hopes the local school system will offer a location, as well.

Girl Scouts to hold annual dinner Nov. 16

KENNETT — The Cotton Boll Girl Scout Council Board met Monday at Kennett with Mrs. Lou Dye presiding.

Reports were given on the previous year's scouting and camping programs and plans were made for the activities of the coming year.

Virginia Heise, a council representative, gave a report on the Girl Scout migrant community project and Debbie Funk, Cotton Boll field advisor, spoke on Senior Day which will be held Oct. 15-16 at Camp Latonka with senior Girl Scout Troop 110 of Malden as advisors for this event.

Plans were made for Malden to host the annual Girl Scout Council dinner Nov. 16, at 6:30 p.m. at the new Community Center.

A worldwide legend as well as a versatile and energetic performer, Elvis is set to appear at the SIU Arena Oct. 27 at 8:30 p.m. in one show only.

Tickets will be sold by orders received through the U.S. Postal Service only. Orders will be filled by the order of the earliest postmark. There are no discounts and all persons entering the building will be required to have a ticket.

"We recognize that some of these policies for the show are departures from our standard procedures. But when a performer of the stature of Elvis wants to play at the SIU Arena, you pretty much have to accept their terms," said Jim Abel, acting arena manager.

"There will be a great demand for tickets, and we want to handle the situation as fairly as possible," said Joel Preston, assistant manager at the arena.

"I can only suggest that everyone fill out their mail orders very carefully, and double-check them before sending them. An error in an order (unsigned check, error in mathematics, etc.) could make the difference between getting tickets and not getting tickets for this show. Orders with errors will just have to be sent back to the customer. Time will not permit us to track down each problem order and try to solve it," Preston added.

Mail orders should include the following information: the number and price of tickets desired, check or money order made out to SIU Arena in the correct amount and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The order should be sent to: Elvis Tickets, SIU Arena Manager, Carbondale, Ill., 62901.

If tickets at the prices ordered are no longer available when an individual's order is processed, the next best available tickets will be substituted and the customer will receive a university refund check for the difference in price.

In order to permit as many people to see the show as possible, extra seats behind the stage have been added to the arena's normal north-end stage Focus 9 concert set-up. Since the Elvis show "flies" their sound (i.e., suspends all speakers and electronics above the stage, rather than on the sides of the stage), seats normally blocked by such speakers will also be sold.

There will be approximately 1,200 added seats, so the total tickets available is near 10,200.

"Of course, we are very excited," concluded Preston. "Elvis is an original, a classic. He started it all. Ever since that momentous Sunday night when Ed Sullivan introduced Elvis from the waist up on nationwide television, his strong, expressive, emotional voice has touched countless people."

Malden girl is elected to Girl Scout planning board for area council

MALDEN — Vickie Black of Malden has been elected to the Senior Planning Board of the Cotton Boll Area Girl Scout Council.

Every Senior Girl Scout troop must send two elected representatives to the four or five meetings of the planning board during the year.

The planning board is a clearing house for ideas and plans concerning Senior scouting in the council, and also serves as the agency to carry out councilwide or intertroop senior programs. The senior girls elected their own planning board officers at the senior rally.

Miss Black is a Senior Scout of Troop 110 in Malden. She has been a Girl Scout for 10 years and attended Camp Latonka for a number of years. This summer she graduated from the counselor in training program.

She went to Washington, D.C. in 1974, and has participated in troop trips, camping and projects. Virginia Heise is her troop advisor.

Vickie is a senior at Malden High School, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Black.

On the light side

PLANDOME, N.Y. (AP) — A middle-aged couple says vibrations and noise from Long Island Railroad trains near their home have taken the steam out of their sex life.

While many commuters complain constantly about the railroad's slow pace, George and Ann Marie Montana say the trains' "roaring speeds" have caused them mental and physical problems. Their lawyer, who describes the plaintiffs as "in their late 50s or early 60s," says both his clients are now under a doctor's care trying to get their love life back on the track.

Meets the Dean

Marquita Wilbanks, left, of Sikeston, met with University of Missouri- Columbia College of Education Dean Bob G. Woods earlier this month during a get- acquainted reception for UMC's minority graduate students. More than 100 students attended the informal gettogether. The Sikeston woman is a doctoral candidate in the UMC department of speech and drama.

Malden proposes new swimming pool to voters

MALDEN — Malden voters will be asked Nov. 2 to approve a $130,000 bond issue to help finance a new swimming pool to replace the old Air Base pool inherited from the federal government.

Mayor Sparrel Davis said the bond issue will involve an approximate 20-cent tax increase per $100 of assessed property valuation for city residents, or about two mills.

The total outlay for the pool facility will be $260,000, with the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation providing half of the expense.

The Bonds will be financed over a 20-year period. At this time, Davis said, the interest rate the city will have to pay is "negotiable. It'll be the rate of interest at the time we sell the bonds," he stated. The last time the city sold bonds, the mayor continued, it was able to secure an interest rate of approximately 5½ per cent. "Interest rates are down right now," he noted.

Davis says there are "two or three" possible sites for the proposed pool. The Malden Air Base is one, and he hopes the local school system will offer a location, as well.

Girl Scouts to hold annual dinner Nov. 16

KENNETT — The Cotton Boll Girl Scout Council Board met Monday at Kennett with Mrs. Lou Dye presiding.

Reports were given on the previous year's scouting and camping programs and plans were made for the activities of the coming year.

Virginia Heise, a council representative, gave a report on the Girl Scout migrant community project and Debbie Funk, Cotton Boll field advisor, spoke on Senior Day which will be held Oct. 15-16 at Camp Latonka with senior Girl Scout Troop 110 of Malden as advisors for this event.

Plans were made for Malden to host the annual Girl Scout Council dinner Nov. 16, at 6:30 p.m. at the new Community Center.

Ann Landers

Hockey not only game played

Dear Ann Landers: Why do mediocre hockey players, when they become fathers, expect their sons to be Bobby Orr reincarnated?

They go to every game the kid plays in an they find fault with every move. "Why didn't you carry the puck? Why didn't you pass the puck? Why didn't you hit the man? Why are you flinging yourself at the players' skates?" The boy ends up feeling like a failure.

If the child had equal rights, he could retaliate with such questions as, "Why aren't you president of your company? Why don't you earn more money? Why do you let younger men pass you on the ladder of success?"

But no, the kid takes the criticism and keeps his mouth shut. He has too much decency to humiliate his dad, even though his dad humiliates him. Will you comment please? — Mother Of A Beat-Down Boy

Dear Mother: You have plenty to be concerned about. Hockey is only one of the games being played in your family. The boy is the victim of a father who feels he didn't make the grade himself so he is trying for a second shot through his son.

Family counseling would be very useful. If your husband won't go, take the boy. He needs to learn how to build defenses against a super-critical, domineering father.

Dear Ann Landers: I attended a dance last weekend where there were 12- and 13-year old girls who were trying to look older. It was really pretty sad.

One girl (she looked like she as about 11) had stuffed toilet paper in her halter to make herself look like she had a bust. When I saw her dancing with an older guy, the toilet paper had moved around a lot and one breast was twice as big as the other. On the smaller side, the toilet paper was sticking out under her arm — about four squares of it. I didn't know whether to say anything to her or not so I just kept quiet. What would you have done? — Embarrassed Silence

Dear E.S.: I would have gotten the girl off to the side and tipped her off. Wouldn't YOU appreciate being told, under similar circumstances? Do unto others, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: I have nothing but praise for the woman who wrote to say she was leaving a "non-husband" who was also a "non-father" in spite of what her family and friends had to say.

How I wish I had had the guts to do it. For 22 years I've known this is a terrible marriage. But I listened to all the "do-gooders" who kept telling me to put my children first.

Now my children are grown and on their own. I never hear from them. I'm alone with this miserable nut. He is 44 (looks 64), sick from the boozing and running around. His family and friends don't come near us because they can't stand his company.

I'm stuck because he has a heart condition and high blood pressure. Too bad I didn't make my move when I had my looks and my husband was in good health. Don't answer this, just print it, please. — Too Late Smart

Dear T.L.S.: Here's your letter. Thanks for the pass.

3 instant coffee to show price hike

NEW YORK (AP) — The Nestle Co. has announced that it is raising the wholesale price of three brands of instant coffee by 7 to 14 per cent, but it says consumers will not feel the increase until the end of the year.

A spokesman for the company, the nation's second biggest producer of instant coffee, said Wednesday it will be up to individual stores to decide whether to pass the price hikes on to the public.

Nescafe instant will go up by 4½ cents an ounce, or 12 per cent; Nescafe decaffeinated will rise by 6 cents an ounce, or 14 per cent; and Nestle Decaf will increase 3 cents an ounce, or 7 per cent, according to the company announcement. The freeze-dried coffees are unaffected.

The increase follows hikes announced earlier in theo by General Foods Corp., the industry leader.

Editor says market incentives key to solving world hunger

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The world hunger problem can best be solved by marketing incentives to increase crop production, not by government intervention, participants in a world hunger seminar were told Wednesday night.

"For the world to have enough food, there has to be a way of maximizing crop production," Martin I. Sosland, editor of Milling and Baking News, told the seminar in suburban Prairie Village, Kan.

"My view is that attaining records in food production ... will best be achieved through the incentives the marketplace provides to the grower, and not by governmental intervention," Sosland said.

Another view was offered by the Rev. Arthur Simon, director of a church program called Bread for the World, who said hunger is "pre-eminently a public policy issue."

"By our silence on public policy we lock people more deeply into hunger," he said. "How do you translate the vision of a world without hunger into a national commitment? By getting Congress to assert that commitment with a resolution granting the right to food for each person; let's get a national commitment from the nation's leaders."

Sosland said the United States has its own hunger problem. "If we want to make low-priced food available to people in this country, that's one thing, but to say we have to deprive the growers in this country of the economic incentives in the marketplace, that's another thing," he said.

Sosland advocated a farm policy to accommodate both consumers and producers. He called for price supports "only to the most efficient grain producers" and a modified reserve program owned by farmers and financed by the government.

You can season meat you are roasting before, during or after cooking. Whenever it is added, the salt and pepper will not penetrate more than about ½ inch.

Coconuts, available in late fall, come from tropical countries. Although coconut palms grow in some of our southern states they provide little commercial food.

Don't worry about chicken having dark bones. They're the sign of a young bird.

An offer she can't refuse

EAST ALTON, Ill. (AP) — A British divorcee who took out a marriage want ad to avoid deportation has received an offer she can't refuse. It's from the office of Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill.

Price has secured a six-month immigration extension over the Dec. 31 deportation deadline set for Mrs. Susan Spurrier and has also agreed to introduce a special bill in Congress which, if approved, would make her a permanent resident.

"It's a whole new ball game now," the 28-year-old woman said Thursday after having received 200 letters of proposal from men as far away as Germany and Hawaii.

Nonetheless, Mrs. Spurrier said she intends to go ahead with her original plan to seek an American husband.

The offers have been pouring in since she took out the classified ad in a nearby weekly newspaper last week that read, "White English lady seeking marriage for immigration purposes." She received so many phone calls that she was forced to get an unlisted number.

"Some of the letters were so moving they made me cry," Mrs. Spurrier, the mother of two young children, said. "They have all been so wonderfully genuine. I intend to answer them all, and I hope to start meeting some of the applicants soon."

Mrs. Spurrier faces deportation because she was never properly registered here as a resident alien.

Frosting makes cake

MOCHA ANGEL CAKE

If you're not counting calories, cover it with a mocha frosting!

1 cup sifted cake flour
1½ cups sifted confectioners' sugar
¼ cup unsweetened cocoa
1 tablespoon instant coffee powder
1½ cups egg whites (from 12 eggs)
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons cream of tartar
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 cup granulated sugar

Sift together cake flour, confectioners' sugar, cocoa and instant coffee. Beat egg whites with salt, cream of tartar and vanilla until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in granulated sugar, beating until stiff peaks form. Fold in flour mixture, about a fourth at a time; do not overmix. Turn into ungreased 10-inch tube pan; run a knife through batter to eliminate large air spaces. Bake in 375-degree oven for 30 minutes, until cake springs back when touched lightly with finger. Invert pan over funnel and let hang until cake is completely cool. Yield: 12 servings. This delightful dessert comes from "The More or Less Cookbooks" by Marvellen Spencer (Van Nostrand Reinhold), a new paperback contribution: one cookbook contains recipes that never count a calorie and the other, recipes that cut calories.

Psychiatrist's care ordered for Miss Lasser

NEW YORK (AP) — Louise Lasser, star of the television comedy-soap opera "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," says she is seeing a psychiatrist rather than attending drug rehabilitation classes after her arrest for possession of cocaine.

In an interview taped for this morning's NBC-TV "Tomorrow" show, Miss Lasser explained that "the judge said it would, in effect, be penalizing me for my celebrity" to order her to attend the classes.

Miss Lasser, ex-wife of comedian Woody Allen, was placed in a six-month drug diversion program by Beverly Hills Municipal Court Judge Leonard Wolf last June.

She was arrested in Los Angeles in May when a shop manager complained to police that she was making a disturbance over the shop's refusal to accept her credit card.

A routine search by police turned up a vial in the actress' purse which contained eight milligrams of cocaine.

Husband of 67 years wins battle to stay with wife

MILWAUKEE (AP) — This is a love story.

Lew Morrison is in love with his wife, Estelle — and has been for 67 years — and nobody is going to split them up.

Morrison, 91, and his wife, 89, have shared a room at the WOODLAND Health Center in suburban Brookfield for the past two years.

But Morrison's health is failing, and nursing home officials suggested that he move from the couple's present room in the ambulatory wing of the home to another area for intensive care patients.

"It started out as an ultimatum," Morrison said. "They were going to move me away from Estelle, and that was it."

But Morrison, former outdoor sports writer for the Milwaukee Sentinel and a former world flycasting champion, wasn't going to leave his wife of nearly 67 years without a fight.

"I don't care how old I am. I'm not about to take a horsewhipping from anybody. I talked real plain and they started listening," said Morrison, whose language ranges from peppery to profane.

So he complained to the district attorney, the sheriff and the mayor.

"We're getting along in life, and we've spent all this time together," he said. "We should be left to have our last years together, too."

Nursing home officials have agreed, at least temporarily, to allow the couple to remain together despite a strain on staff members who have to give extra care to Morrison because of recent illness.

"It's a hell of a note," Morrison said. "I'm getting to the point where I'm losing my eyesight and my hearing and I can hardly walk, and they're trying to break up my home."

However, he said he is satisfied, at least for the moment, with the decision of nursing home officials to leave the couple together.

The bond, he said, is love.

"Sure, we love each other," he said. "Oh, we fight a lot, too. Always have. But after nearly 67 years, this has to be the longest fight on record, and I'm not willing to end it."

Weddings to come

Wiley-Schaefer

Pamela Sharon Wiley

DONIPHAN — Mr. and Mrs. B.F. Wiley of Doniphan announce the engagement of their daughter, Pamela Sharon, to Michael Mark Schaefer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Schaefer of Cape Girardeau.

Miss Wiley is a graduate of Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau and is a member of the alumni chapter of Phi Gamma Nu, a professional business sorority. She is presently employed as a management trainee at J.C. Penney Co. in Sikeston.

Schaefer attended Southeast Missouri State University and is a member of the Delta Chi fraternity. He also played varsity tennis for SEMO. He is presently employed at Procter & Gamble in Cape Girardeau.

A spring wedding is planned.

Mary Margaret Abernathy narrated a style show which was the highlight of the evening. Seated, from left, Polly Hanks, Mildred Graviett and Myra Myers. Standing, Pam Bedell, Judy Gardner, Maxine Kirmaier, Terry Ponder, Virginia Parker, Sharrye Taylor, Georgia Ferrell, Diana Mercer and Mary Lou Schneider.

An offer she can't refuse

EAST ALTON, Ill. (AP) — A British divorcee who took out a marriage want ad to avoid deportation has received an offer she can't refuse. It's from the office of Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill.

Price has secured a six-month immigration extension over the Dec. 31 deportation deadline set for Mrs. Susan Spurrier and has also agreed to introduce a special bill in Congress which, if approved, would make her a permanent resident.

"It's a whole new ball game now," the 28-year-old woman said Thursday after having received 200 letters of proposal from men as far away as Germany and Hawaii.

Nonetheless, Mrs. Spurrier said she intends to go ahead with her original plan to seek an American husband.

The offers have been pouring in since she took out the classified ad in a nearby weekly newspaper last week that read, "White English lady seeking marriage for immigration purposes." She received so many phone calls that she was forced to get an unlisted number.

"Some of the letters were so moving they made me cry," Mrs. Spurrier, the mother of two young children, said. "They have all been so wonderfully genuine. I intend to answer them all, and I hope to start meeting some of the applicants soon."

Mrs. Spurrier faces deportation because she was never properly registered here as a resident alien

Frosting makes cake

MOCHA ANGEL CAKE

If you're not counting calories, cover it with a mocha frosting!

1 cup sifted cake flour
1½ cups sifted confectioners' sugar
¼ cup unsweetened cocoa
1 tablespoon instant coffee powder
1½ cups egg whites (from 12 eggs)
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons cream of tartar
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 cup granulated sugar

Sift together cake flour, confectioners' sugar, cocoa and instant coffee. Beat egg whites with salt, cream of tartar and vanilla until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in granulated sugar, beating until stiff peaks form. Fold in flour mixture, about a fourth at a time; do not overmix. Turn into ungreased 10-inch tube pan; run a knife through batter to eliminate large air spaces. Bake in 375-degree oven for 30 minutes, until cake springs back when touched lightly with finger. Invert pan over funnel and let hang until cake is completely cool. Yield: 12 servings. This delightful dessert comes from "The More or Less Cookbooks" by Marvellen Spencer (Van Nostrand Reinhold), a new paperback contribution: one cookbook contains recipes that never count a calorie and the other, recipes that cut calories.

Psychiatrist's care ordered for Miss Lasser

NEW YORK (AP) — Louise Lasser, star of the television comedy-soap opera "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," says she is seeing a psychiatrist rather than attending drug rehabilitation classes after her arrest for possession of cocaine.

In an interview taped for this morning's NBC-TV "Tomorrow" show, Miss Lasser explained that "the judge said it would, in effect, be penalizing me for my celebrity" to order her to attend the classes.

Miss Lasser, ex-wife of comedian Woody Allen, was placed in a six-month drug diversion program by Beverly Hills Municipal Court Judge Leonard Wolf last June.

She was arrested in Los Angeles in May when a shop manager complained to police that she was making a disturbance over the shop's refusal to accept her credit card.

A routine search by police turned up a vial in the actress' purse which contained eight milligrams of cocaine.

Husband of 67 years wins battle to stay with wife

MILWAUKEE (AP) — This is a love story.

Lew Morrison is in love with his wife, Estelle — and has been for 67 years — and nobody is going to split them up.

Morrison, 91, and his wife, 89, have shared a room at the WOODLAND Health Center in suburban Brookfield for the past two years.

But Morrison's health is failing, and nursing home officials suggested that he move from the couple's present room in the ambulatory wing of the home to another area for intensive care patients.

"It started out as an ultimatum," Morrison said. "They were going to move me away from Estelle, and that was it."

But Morrison, former outdoor sports writer for the Milwaukee Sentinel and a former world flycasting champion, wasn't going to leave his wife of nearly 67 years without a fight.

"I don't care how old I am. I'm not about to take a horsewhipping from anybody. I talked real plain and they started listening," said Morrison, whose language ranges from peppery to profane.

So he complained to the district attorney, the sheriff and the mayor.

"We're getting along in life, and we've spent all this time together," he said. "We should be left to have our last years together, too."

Nursing home officials have agreed, at least temporarily, to allow the couple to remain together despite a strain on staff members who have to give extra care to Morrison because of recent illness.

"It's a hell of a note," Morrison said. "I'm getting to the point where I'm losing my eyesight and my hearing and I can hardly walk, and they're trying to break up my home."

However, he said he is satisfied, at least for the moment, with the decision of nursing home officials to leave the couple together.

The bond, he said, is love.

"Sure, we love each other," he said. "Oh, we fight a lot, too. Always have. But after nearly 67 years, this has to be the longest fight on record, and I'm not willing to end it."

The lateness of the cotton season is brought out by the figures from the gins of Mississippi and Scott Counties. In Mississippi County in 1925 up until September 23, 836 bales were ginned. During the same period in the present year, only 309 bales have been ginned. In Scott County, in 1925, 1,143 bales had been turned out, while this year there have been but 269.

The John W. Henney Co., of Freeport, Ill., had on display at the automobile show at the Fair, a handsome combination funeral coach, which was purchased by the Welsh Undertaking Co., of this city.

INDIAN SUMMER: NATURES BLESSING OR UNHEEDED WARNING?
by J. Mary Wilson

It might be a long time from May to December, but when autumn comes, we should know that winter isn't far behind. And to remind us of this cold fact, nature had given us an alarm clock to awaken us from our summer slumber, but not many of us take heed to the gentle warning called Indian summer, and like the grasshopper, winter catches us unprepared! Indian summer is always a blessing after the first sharp, cold snap of autumn, a fine time to grab a pre-summer nap and pretend that winter will be mild this year.

Indian summer is a flighty thing and can best be described as a short period of fair weather that usually follows the first period of cold weather in autumn. It is caused by a large, tropical air mass that has moved in from the south and remains stagnant for a period of two to three weeks. Nights remain cool, but daytime temperatures climb rapidly to spring like levels and the sky remains hazy and still, with almost no wind.

Most parts of the world have short periods of fair weather similar to Indian summer. It is "Gods gift to Poland", and in Western Europe is known as Second, or Old Wives summer. The English call it St. Martins or All Hallows summer, a time of blessing and the last harvest of the year.

The American Indians slooked forward to Indian summer and considered it a gift from Cautantowwit, the great god of the Southwest. It was a time to prepare for winter, as scattered tribes, especially on the Great Plains, began re-grouping to face the bitter weather to come.

Hibernating animals appeared more active, in constant serach for food, and great flocks of ducks and geese began their southward flights to escape the death grip of winter.

Today it hols special significance and the wise consumer takes heed to natures alarm clock. In many, if not most cases, however, Indian summer is a "dirty trick" and because of the mild weather we forget how quickly winter grips our lives. Storm windows remain hidden away in basements; automobile batteries remain unchecked, until one bitter-cold morning we turn the ignition key and nothing happens except a few rolling clicks. The cables and terminals have corroded and more often than not, the life expectancy of the battery has expired. Luck has seen us through the summer, but suddenly the harsh reality of passing time tugs at our minds and jolts us wide awake! The warning of Indian summer has had a reversing effect, and lines form at service stations, each driver hoping the supply of anti-freeze doesn't give out!

Indian summer -- the warning is here, winter is near! But, it's easier to take a walk in the woods than to check the family car for worn out fan belts. Then, more than ever, winter is far from our minds!

Dear Sir:

In general, I consider this years Cotton Carnival parade good, clean entertainment. The only thing that disturbs me is the thought of that young man portraying Jesus in one of the floats. I do not know the young man personally but evidently he is very brave. Herod portrayed God in Acts 12:21. Read the account given in the King James Bible. Jesus was perfect, he was sinless. No other man can even begin to come close to his marvelous name. Yet I wonder how they managed to pick this young man. Don't misunderstand me, there's absolutely no way you'd get me to portray Jesus Christ. My prayer is that this young man will realize what he is doing and deny that position should the opportunity present itself again. Meanwhile he has my prayers and the hope that he'll find the REAL Jesus.

Your servant in Christ,
Dennis Taylor

Cotton season is late

Miss Eloise Prior of Memphis is the new director of girls' athletics at the high school. She takes the place of Miss Morehead, who resigned last week to accept a position in Waco, Tex., as supervisor of girls' athletics in the public schools there.

Donald Milem left the first of last week for Sewanee, Tenn., where he will enroll as a sophomore at the University of the South.

The lateness of the cotton season is brought out by the figures from the gins of Mississippi and Scott Counties. In Mississippi County in 1925 up until September 23, 836 bales were ginned. During the same period in the present year, only 309 bales have been ginned. In Scott County, in 1925, 1,143 bales had been turned out, while this year there have been but 269.

The John W. Henney Co., of Freeport, Ill., had on display at the automobile show at the Fair, a handsome combination funeral coach, which was purchased by the Welsh Undertaking Co., of this city.

INDIAN SUMMER: NATURES BLESSING OR UNHEEDED WARNING?
by J. Mary Wilson

It might be a long time from May to December, but when autumn comes, we should know that winter isn't far behind. And to remind us of this cold fact, nature had given us an alarm clock to awaken us from our summer slumber, but not many of us take heed to the gentle warning called Indian summer, and like the grasshopper, winter catches us unprepared! Indian summer is always a blessing after the first sharp, cold snap of autumn, a fine time to grab a pre-summer nap and pretend that winter will be mild this year.

Indian summer is a flighty thing and can best be described as a short period of fair weather that usually follows the first period of cold weather in autumn. It is caused by a large, tropical air mass that has moved in from the south and remains stagnant for a period of two to three weeks. Nights remain cool, but daytime temperatures climb rapidly to spring like levels and the sky remains hazy and still, with almost no wind.

Most parts of the world have short periods of fair weather similar to Indian summer. It is "Gods gift to Poland", and in Western Europe is known as Second, or Old Wives summer. The English call it St. Martins or All Hallows summer, a time of blessing and the last harvest of the year.

The American Indians slooked forward to Indian summer and considered it a gift from Cautantowwit, the great god of the Southwest. It was a time to prepare for winter, as scattered tribes, especially on the Great Plains, began re-grouping to face the bitter weather to come.

Hibernating animals appeared more active, in constant serach for food, and great flocks of ducks and geese began their southward flights to escape the death grip of winter.

Today it hols special significance and the wise consumer takes heed to natures alarm clock. In many, if not most cases, however, Indian summer is a "dirty trick" and because of the mild weather we forget how quickly winter grips our lives. Storm windows remain hidden away in basements; automobile batteries remain unchecked, until one bitter-cold morning we turn the ignition key and nothing happens except a few rolling clicks. The cables and terminals have corroded and more often than not, the life expectancy of the battery has expired. Luck has seen us through the summer, but suddenly the harsh reality of passing time tugs at our minds and jolts us wide awake! The warning of Indian summer has had a reversing effect, and lines form at service stations, each driver hoping the supply of anti-freeze doesn't give out!

Indian summer -- the warning is here, winter is near! But, it's easier to take a walk in the woods than to check the family car for worn out fan belts. Then, more than ever, winter is far from our minds!

Dear Sir:

In general, I consider this years Cotton Carnival parade good, clean entertainment. The only thing that disturbs me is the thought of that young man portraying Jesus in one of the floats. I do not know the young man personally but evidently he is very brave. Herod portrayed God in Acts 12:21. Read the account given in the King James Bible. Jesus was perfect, he was sinless. No other man can even begin to come close to his marvelous name. Yet I wonder how they managed to pick this young man. Don't misunderstand me, there's absolutely no way you'd get me to portray Jesus Christ. My prayer is that this young man will realize what he is doing and deny that position should the opportunity present itself again. Meanwhile he has my prayers and the hope that he'll find the REAL Jesus.

Your servant in Christ,
Dennis Taylor

Norman also pleaded guilty to interfering with a police officer in the line of duty and was assessed a 10-day jail sentence to be served concurrently with the above sentence. The same charge against Abernathy was dismissed, and Summerfield pleaded not guilty to the charge. Judge Banta appointed an attorney to defend Summerfield against the charge and set trial for Oct. 14. He will be released from custody on $1,000 bond after serving his 10-day sentence for peace disturbance.

An attorney was appointed to defend Roy Mannon of East Prairie against charges of disturbing the peace, interfering with a police officer in the performance of his duty and assaulting a police officer. The case was continued to Oct. 21, and he remained in custody under bonds totaling $3,500.

Mannon is accused of striking East Prairie Police Sgt. Bill Grissom in the face during the brawl on the parking lot which reportedly occurred when officers attempted to arrest Richard Pickett of Charleston on charges of drunken and disorderly conduct.

Pickett was sentenced to 10 days in the Mississippi County jail for public intoxication, with court costs certified to the county.

Pleading not guilty to charges of peace disturbance and interfering with officers were Tim Brown of East Prairie, Sammy Dale Morgan of Charleston and Sandra Delashmet of Charleston Route Two. Trials for the three, who are free on bonds of $1,000 each on both counts, were scheduled for Oct. 14, and an attorney was appointed to represent Brown.

A stealing charge against Michael Wayne Blasingain of Charleston was amended to stealing less than $50. He was sentenced to six months in the county jail and costs were certified to the county. The charge was filed in connection with the theft of a purse containing $250 from the arm of Edith Lee of Charleston on Sept. 15.

Blasingain also was assessed a six-month jail sentence on a common assault charge which is to run concurrently with the stealing charge. The latter charge was filed in connection with an assault upon Buddy Marshal of Charleston, who reportedly sought to aid Mrs. Lee.

Dutch Adopt U.S. T-Shirts

FAR-FLUNG FASHION—Two Dutch teen-agers sport U.S. T-shirts in an Amsterdam boutique. The American shirts—many with sports logos—are all the rage among the Dutch currently.

By SHIRLEY CHAMPA

AMSTERDAM (AP) — U.S. T-shirts emblazoned with the logos of top American sports teams are all the rage among Dutch youngsters.

The kids are walking out with gear proclaiming "Cleveland Indians," "Dallas Cowboys" and "Philadelphia Flyers." Decorated with huge '76s and bold red, white and blue stripes, the shirts have an American bicentennial flavor.

The scene on the streets is not much different from an American town, but all the accents are Dutch.

Boutiques on Amsterdam's fashionable Kalverstraat are filled with the shirts. A clerk in one shop said hundreds were sold in a week.

"Since we got the first stocks in the beginning of June we've been selling them as fast as we get them in," she said.

Store racks are also crammed with American university sweatshirts — a style U.S. college students have cherished for years.

One Dutchman wearing a Michigan State University sweatshirt said he didn't know where Michigan was. "It's just something fun to wear," he explained.

The United States makes many of the shirts but others are imported from Spain, Portugal, Italy and even Communist Romania. The shirts mostly sell for 25 guilders or about $10. Similar ones sell in the United States for half as much.

Catchy slogans highlight some of the more offbeat shirts. One proclaims "Be a Man and Do It — Join the U.S. Navy." "American Cruising Ship" is emblazoned across another. Shirts resembling old flour sacks declare "Heart of America" and "Gold Medal Flour." Others have no slogans but are covered with red, white and blue stars and stripes. Uncle Sam glares from another.

Popular also are new and used American bowling and garage mechanic shirts. Dutch trend-setters are proudly sporting shirts that proclaim "Snowline Bowl and Billiards, Oakhurst," "Boulevard Lanes, Dover, Ohio" and "Cloverleaf Speedway."

In one exclusive shop a shirt with "Dalton Chevy and Olds, Garage Inc." stitched on the back is selling for 60 guilders or $24.

One Dutch girl commented, "It's crazy. People here pay a lot of money to wear somebody's old shirt."

While Dutch kids are snapping up the American shirts in fashionable stores, Americans in souvenir shops nearby are busy buying Holland T-shirts decorated with windmills and tulips.

Dutch Adopt U.S. T-Shirts

FAR-FLUNG FASHION—Two Dutch teen-agers sport U.S. T-shirts in an Amsterdam boutique. The American shirts—many with sports logos—are all the rage among the Dutch currently.

By SHIRLEY CHAMPA

AMSTERDAM (AP) — U.S. T-shirts emblazoned with the logos of top American sports teams are all the rage among Dutch youngsters.

The kids are walking out with gear proclaiming "Cleveland Indians," "Dallas Cowboys" and "Philadelphia Flyers." Decorated with huge '76s and bold red, white and blue stripes, the shirts have an American bicentennial flavor.

Deaths

Msgr. Keusenkothen dies at age 74

KELSO — The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph F. Keusenkothen, 74, a retired Catholic priest, died Thursday at 7:35 p.m. in St. Francis Hospital at Cape Girardeau, where he had been a patient since March.

Born Jan. 15, 1902 in Oefte bei Kebbwig Rhineland, Germany, he was the son of John C. and Elizabeth Muehlsiepen Keusenkothen.

He came to the United States at an early age and arrived in Kelso July 29, 1912, and became a naturalized United States citizen as a young man.

Msgr. Keusenkothen attended Kenrick Seminary in St. Louis and was ordained to the priesthood on June 6, 1925. His first pastorate was Perpetual Help Parish in St. Louis. He then returned to Kelso to serve as associate pastor to his uncle, the Rev. John Muehlsiepen until 1940, when he became pastor of St. Augustine Catholic Church.

On Aug. 26, 1960, he was invested as domestic prelate and had been a dean in this area from that time until retiring several months ago due to ill health.

He was a member of St. Vincent's Council IIII of Knights of Columbus at Cape Girardeau.

Survivors include: one brother, John L. Keusenkothen of Kelso, a Cape Girardeau attorney, and eight nephews and two nieces.

A sister, Miss Mary Keusenkothen, preceded him in death.

Friends may call after 7 p.m. today at Amick-Burnett Funeral Chapel in Illmo.

The body will be moved to St. Augustine Church in Kelso Sunday, where friends may call after noon.

Carters guests of major Georgia firm

WOODBINE, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter and members of his family spent several days as guests of a major Georgia company at a rustic forest resort while he was governor of the state, company records show.

Carter, his daughter, Amy, two sons and a future daughter-in-law signed the guest book in late November 1972 at Cabin Bluff, a private facility in southeast Georgia owned by Brunswick Pulp and Paper Co., the records showed.

Jack Murdock, general manager of the facility, said Carter was invited to Cabin Bluff to discuss with a company official his plan for merging the state Forestry Commission with the Georgia Department of Natural Resources.

Murdock said the record also showed Carter used the facility again on July 28, 1973 to conduct a meeting involving members of his staff and at least one state senator.

Murdock said Cabin Bluff is a "producing pine plantation" on 50,000 acres of company-owned land, used primarily as a "showcase for modern forestry techniques." He said the company "picks up the tab for everything."

Murdock said it was impossible from the records to determine how long Carter and members of his family remained at the facility during the November visit, but that other company employes recalled the visit as lasting three or four days.

Scott County Court is advised of port authority's decision

BENTON — C. B. Taylor of Morley, vice president, and Raymond Roth of Illmo, secretary-treasurer, of the Southeast Missouri Regional Port Authority Board of Commissioners reported to the Scott County Court Thursday that Delta Engineering Consultants of Cape Girardeau has been selected by the port authority board to conduct a feasibility study of a short range port facility.

The board officers told the court that the study will be funded by a $20,000 grant from the Ozark Regional Commission which must be matched with funds totaling 25 per cent of the grant raised by the authority.

The three-member court panel reported that $2,500 has already been budgeted as Scott County's portion, and agreed to disburse the money as needed.

The Cape Girardeau County Court, the other governmental body represented on the port authority board, is responsible for the remainder of the matching funds.

Caterpillars housewife says hard winter

HIGH RIDGE, Mo. (AP) — The woolly bear caterpillars may indicate a mild winter for the Northeast, but in the Midwest, watch out.

Helen Wohlschlager, a housewife and naturalist, claims 100 per cent accuracy in predicting winters in the seven years she's been reading caterpillars.

"This year I'm scared out of my mind because we are finding all back ones," she said of the normally brown or light gold fuzzies.

A Pennsylvania man who has been finding blonde woolies says it is a portent of a mild winter there. But the story will be different in the Midwest, Mrs. Wohlschlager predicted.

"There'll be a great deal of precipitation, and it won't be the type of thing that will come and go. I can see no break in it whatsoever," she said.

Mrs. Wohlschlager, 39, said she learned caterpillar reading from an elderly German, now deceased, who lived in the hills along the Big River near here.

She is so convinced of their fuzzies' reliability that she has already begun to lay in supplies as well as feed for the goats, chickens and rabbits that she and her family raise.

Students take college courses in high school

COLUMBIA— Missouri high school students no longer have to wait until graudation to go to college. The University of Missouri is bringing the college to them.

Through the use of weekly television lessons aired over KCPT-TV in Kansas City, KOMU-TV in Columbia, KETC-TV in St. Louis and various cable systems in Missouri, the University's college-at-home program (the University of Mid-America) offers college credit courses "at your place . . . at your pace . . . on your time."

Students may take college courses while they are still enrolled in high school. State Coordinator Lynn W. Martin explains, "Students do not attend classes, but instead study entirely in their own homes or schools — reading textbooks, completing workbooks and watching course lessons on television each week.

"When a student completes a course, the college credit is held in reserve until high school graduation. Therefore, it is quite conceivable that a high school senior could earn nine college credit hours through our program before he even graduates from high school," he continued.

Fourteen seniors from Camdenton High School are currently taking advantage of this unique opportunity. Although Camdenton is not in the viewing area of the television stations broadcasting the courses, the students are able to watch the lessons on videocassette players provided by the university.

At the high school, the students are given one hour a day out of their regular class schedule to study their college course materials or view tapes of the lessons.

Dan Hagedorn, high school counselor, explains why the school is cooperating with such enthusiasm, "most of our students easily meet the class requirements for high school graduation. Therefore, we see no reason why some elective hours of the student's senior year shoul not be used for college.

"The university's program is taking nothing away from the students' high school experience while it is adding valuable college experience."

Continuing Education Specialist Leon Chilton, who helped to organize the effort between Camdenton High School and the university, says many of the adults in the area are also interested in enrolling in the college courses and plans are being made to utilize the same tapes provided for the students.

Instructors for the courses are University of Missouri faculty members who are available to the students for consultation one night each week at a toll-free telephone number. The students may call to ask questions, discuss problems or go over examinations.

Dr. Fred McKinney, psychology professor, says the students who enroll in this program can perhaps get more personal attention if they seek it from the instructor than they would if they took the same courses on a college campus.

"Not only can the student call us if he has a problem or question, but many times we will call the student to see how he is getting along i nthe course. This is a new experience for students and instructors alike," McKinney said.

Terri Minshall, program coordinator, says the college-at-home program, although open to all elibible persons, can be especially advantageious to the high school senior.

"Many high school seniors today are anxious for the challenge of college; others are unsure about attending college at all. Our program can help both," Minshall said.

The college-at-home experience can serve as a bridge for the student between high school and college. It gives the student the opportunity to experience college study before he must decide whether to continue his education. This way, the student has time to develop and sharpen college study habits before he starts full-time.

It also puts bright students a jump ahead of most other freshmen.

Interested individuals or schools may contact the program by writing to University of Missouri, University of Mid-America Program, 429 Clark Hall, Columbia, Mo. 65201, or by calling toll-free telephone number 800 392-0536.

Chaffee native dies when boat sinks, 2 others missing

SEATTLE — A Chaffee, Mo., native, Bert Stroud, died under mysterious circumstances in what appears to be the skinking of a boat while en route to his home in Seattle from Anchorage, Alaska.

The Coast Guard found Stroud's body Saturday, washed up on Kayak Island. Pieces of the boat being sailed by owners, Mr. and Mrs. Don Lowcox, were found earlier, but there is no trace of their bodies.

Stroud last visited Chaffee over the summer when he returned for the 50th reunion of his high school graduating class. He and his wife visited Chaffee about once a year.

The Lowcoxes and Stroud had been vacationing in Anchorage and were returning to Seattle, where Stroud, a retired electrician, makes his home.

Born Aug. 29, 1907 in Ste. Genevieve, Mo., Stroud was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stroud. The family moved to Chaffee when he was a baby and he attended Chaffee schools.

In 1938, he married Oregene Wagner of Roseberg, Ore., who survives. They moved to Seattle during World War II.

Also surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Robert Johnson of Renton and Mrs. Mary Rhyne of Port Orchard; one sister, Mrs. Fern Wallace of Bellevue; three brothers, Bill Stroud of New Orelans, Charles Stroud of Clifton, N.J., and Frank Stroud of Memphis, Tenn.; and three grandchildren.

Carters guests of major Georgia firm

WOODBINE, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter and members of his family spent several days as guests of a major Georgia company at a rustic forest resort while he was governor of the state, company records show.

Carter, his daughter, Amy, two sons and a future daughter-in-law signed the guest book in late November 1972 at Cabin Bluff, a private facility in southeast Georgia owned by Brunswick Pulp and Paper Co., the records showed.

Jack Murdock, general manager of the facility, said Carter was invited to Cabin Bluff to discuss with a company official his plan for merging the state Forestry Commission with the Georgia Department of Natural Resources.

Murdock said the record also showed Carter used the facility again on July 28, 1973 to conduct a meeting involving members of his staff and at least one state senator.

Murdock said Cabin Bluff is a "producing pine plantation" on 50,000 acres of company-owned land, used primarily as a "showcase for modern forestry techniques." He said the company "picks up the tab for everything."

Murdock said it was impossible from the records to determine how long Carter and members of his family remained at the facility during the November visit, but that other company employes recalled the visit as lasting three or four days.

Scott County Court is advised of port authority's decision

BENTON — C. B. Taylor of Morley, vice president, and Raymond Roth of Illmo, secretary-treasurer, of the Southeast Missouri Regional Port Authority Board of Commissioners reported to the Scott County Court Thursday that Delta Engineering Consultants of Cape Girardeau has been selected by the port authority board to conduct a feasibility study of a short range port facility.

The board officers told the court that the study will be funded by a $20,000 grant from the Ozark Regional Commission which must be matched with funds totaling 25 per cent of the grant raised by the authority.

The three-member court panel reported that $2,500 has already been budgeted as Scott County's portion, and agreed to disburse the money as needed.

The Cape Girardeau County Court, the other governmental body represented on the port authority board, is responsible for the remainder of the matching funds.

Students take college courses in high school

COLUMBIA— Missouri high school students no longer have to wait until graudation to go to college. The University of Missouri is bringing the college to them.

Through the use of weekly television lessons aired over KCPT-TV in Kansas City, KOMU-TV in Columbia, KETC-TV in St. Louis and various cable systems in Missouri, the University's college-at-home program (the University of Mid-America) offers college credit courses "at your place . . . at your pace . . . on your time."

Students may take college courses while they are still enrolled in high school. State Coordinator Lynn W. Martin explains, "Students do not attend classes, but instead study entirely in their own homes or schools — reading textbooks, completing workbooks and watching course lessons on television each week.

"When a student completes a course, the college credit is held in reserve until high school graduation. Therefore, it is quite conceivable that a high school senior could earn nine college credit hours through our program before he even graduates from high school," he continued.

Fourteen seniors from Camdenton High School are currently taking advantage of this unique opportunity. Although Camdenton is not in the viewing area of the television stations broadcasting the courses, the students are able to watch the lessons on videocassette players provided by the university.

At the high school, the students are given one hour a day out of their regular class schedule to study their college course materials or view tapes of the lessons.

Dan Hagedorn, high school counselor, explains why the school is cooperating with such enthusiasm, "most of our students easily meet the class requirements for high school graduation. Therefore, we see no reason why some elective hours of the student's senior year shoui not be used for college.

"The university's program is taking nothing away from the students' high school experience while it is adding valuable college experience."

Continuing Education Specialist Leon Chilton, who helped to organize the effort between Camdenton High School and the university, says many of the adults in the area are also interested in enrolling in the college courses and plans are being made to utilize the same tapes provided for the students.

Instructors for the courses are University of Missouri faculty members who are available to the students for consultation one night each week at a toll-free telephone number. The students may call to ask questions, discuss problems or go over examinations.

Dr. Fred McKinney, psychology professor, says the students who enroll in this program can perhaps get more personal attention if they seek it from the instructor than they would if they took the same courses on a college campus.

"Not only can the student call us if he has a problem or question, but many times we will call the student to see how he is getting along i nthe course. This is a new experience for students and instructors alike," McKinney said.

Terri Minshall, program coordinator, says the college-at-home program, although open to all elibible persons, can be especially advantageious to the high school senior.

"Many high school seniors today are anxious for the challenge of college; others are unsure about attending college at all. Our program can help both," Minshall said.

The college-at-home experience can serve as a bridge for the student between high school and college. It gives the student the opportunity to experience college study before he must decide whether to continue his education. This way, the student has time to develop and sharpen college study habits before he starts full-time.

It also puts bright students a jump ahead of most other freshmen.

Interested individuals or schools may contact the program by writing to University of Missouri, University of Mid-America Program, 429 Clark Hall, Columbia, Mo. 65201, or by calling toll-free telephone number 800 392-0536.

Caterpillars housewife says hard winter

HIGH RIDGE, Mo. (AP) — The woolly bear caterpillars may indicate a mild winter for the Northeast, but in the Midwest, watch out.

Helen Wohlschlager, a housewife and naturalist, claims 100 per cent accuracy in predicting winters in the seven years she's been reading caterpillars.

"This year I'm scared out of my mind because we are finding all back ones," she said of the normally brown or light gold fuzzies.

A Pennsylvania man who has been finding blonde woolies says it is a portent of a mild winter there. But the story will be different in the Midwest, Mrs. Wohlschlager predicted.

"There'll be a great deal of precipitation, and it won't be the type of thing that will come and go. I can see no break in it whatsoever," she said.

Mrs. Wohlschlager, 39, said she learned caterpillar reading from an elderly German, now deceased, who lived in the hills along the Big River near here.

She is so convinced of their fuzzies' reliability that she has already begun to lay in supplies as well as feed for the goats, chickens and rabbits that she and her family raise.

Freshman Dogs win 3rd in a row

The freshman football team remained undefeated on the season as they rolled to their third consecutive win by defeating the Cape Girardeau Central High Tigers by the slim margin of 16-14.

Sikeston's scoring started in the first period as Joey Kyle ran two yards to cap a 65 yard drive and put the Bulldogs in front 6-0.

Then Gary Lasater scooted in with the two point conversion to extend the lead to 8-0.

The Tigers of Cape Central closed the spread to 8-6 before halftime as they scored on a 55 yard run by their tailback. The try for the conversion was missed.

Then in the third quarter, Cape's fullback lumbered in from two yards away as Cape led for the first time in the contest by a 12-8 margin. Then the quarterback finished the Tiger scoring as he ran in the two point conversion to put Sikeston further behind at 14-8.

Sikeston scored what proved to be the winning touchdown at the beginning of the fourth quarter as again they capped off a sustained drive with Johnny Longstreet diving in from one yard out to knot the score at 14-14. Then Joey Kyle rushed for the two point conversion which ultimately spelled the margin of victory for the Bulldogs.

In summing up his team's performance, coach George Hale said, "I thought it was a good game for our offense and overall our defense played a good game, however we did commit a couple of mental mistakes." What coach Hale was referring to was the 55 yard touchdown run and a 40 yard pass play which set up the second touchdown as the Cape receiver had beaten the Sikeston defender on the play.

The next encounter for the Bulldogs Freshman team will be next Thursday at Kennett when both the eighth and ninth grade teams will play.

Juice gets off to slow start

AP Sports Writer

O.J. Simpson has rushed for 105 yards. That's ot unusual. But it's taken him three games to get them. That's unusual.

The super-runner of the Buffalo Bills, who made the 100-yard game a commonplace occurrence the past few seasons, has been anything but super this year.

And he figures it's time he got his act together. The curtain-raiser may come Sunday against the visiting Kansas City Chiefs.

"I may not be as sharp as I want for extemporaneous running, making cutbacks and improvising once I get out there. But I think I'm in shape now," says Simpson, who sat out the entire preseason, on the verge of retirement, then rejoined the Bills on the eve of the season's start when owner Ralph Wilson Jr. came through with a bundle of money.

In Sunday's other games it's Washington at Chicago, Dallas at Seattle, Houston at New Orleans, Oakland at New England, Philadelphia at Atlanta, Cincinnati at Cleveland, Tampa Bay at Baltimore, Detroit at Green Bay, the New York Giants at St. Louis, Los Angeles at Miami, San Diego at Denver and the New York Jets at San Francisco. Monday night's game is Pittsburgh at Minnesota.

The Bills are one-touchdown favorites to beat the Chiefs, even though Kansas City has won six of the last seven games against Buffalo. The last time they met, however, it was a big day in a big season for Simpson. He sashayed through the Kansas City defense for 157 yards enroute to his 2,003-yard season and the Bills won 23-14.

Kansas City has won nothing this season. "We've just got to keep building, keep fighting and keep struggling," says Coach Paul Wiggin.

The Redskins were struggling last Monday night, playing nearly five inconsistent periods against Philadelphia before beating the Eagles 20-17 in sudden-death overtime. Despite this, Chicago Coach Jack Pardee says his Bears, slim four-point underdogs, have an exceptionally tough game ahead of them.

"They're undefeated," Padree said. "The Redskins look like a sure thing — with their schedule and everything — to make the playoffs. We're 2-1 ... and Washington will be the first winning team we've faced."

The Cowboys are overwhelming favorites against the winless expansion Seahawks. The futility of the situation is not lost on Seattle Coach Jsck Patera. "We have as much chance to beat Dallas as we had against the other three teams," he said with a wry smile.

New Orleans Coach Hank Stram figures a little color cordination at the Superdome may help his Saints upset Houston. He'll have them dressed in their white road uniforms for the home game instead of their usual black and gold.

They've won once this season, last week on the road — in white — against Kansas City. They won four games in the exhibition season, three in a row in the whites.

Big Eight teams face final week of non-conference games

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Somewhere in Colorado there must be a conventional, average young man who can kick field goals and extra points.

Pete Dadiotis, the 28-year-old Mexican restaurant operator and Greek Army veteran who won the Buffaloes' kicking job last spring is out for the year with knee damage.

His replacement? The president of the Boulder Civic Opera.

Mark Zetterberg, a walk-on senior who has regained his scholarship, came in and hit four extra points in last week's victory over Miami. In between football practices, he's getting ready for his singing debut next year with the Seattle opera. A veteran of the Metropolitan Opera in New York, he played with the Colorado Shakespeare Troupe last summer in "King John" and "The Tempest"

Zetterberg should get plenty of opportunity to perfect his extra-point boot this week. The 2-1 Buffaloes are overwhelming favorites to crush Drake, which is winless in four starts.

So confident is coach Bill Mallory that he's violating an unwritten coaching rule and looking ahead.

"We know that Nebraska is next up and we want to go in there ready and willing," Mallory said of the Oct. 9 date with the fifth-ranked Cornhuskers, who humiliated the Buffs last year, 63-21.

Nebraska is also expecting a light afternoon with the same Miami team that bowed to Colorado.

In other action involving Big Eight Conference teams, Kansas State travels to Florida State for a night game, Oklahoma State hosts North Texas State, Kansas is home against Wisconsin, Missouri tangles with North Carolina at Columbia and Oklahoma and Iowa State open conference warfare at Ames.

The Wisconsin-Kansas clash is made to order for fans who prefer offensive football. The undefeated and ninth-ranked Jayhawks are the nation's fourth-leading rushing team, rank 11th in total offense and 10th in scoring.

The Badgers, 2-1, are 10th in total offense and fifth in scoring.

But the star of the afternoon may well be Laverne Smith, KU's senior halfback who needs just 174 yards to become his school's all-time leading rusher.

Nebraska, 2-0-1, is expecting the 83rd consecutive sellout Saturday in what will be a homecoming of sorts. Miami head coach Carl Selmer and defensive coordinator Jim Walden were assistants under Bob Devaney in the early '70s at the same time that current Husker boss Tom Osborne was coaching the offensive ends.

Oklahoma's bid for a third straight national championship could face its sternest test to date at Ames, where the Cyclones have stampeded their first three opponents with surprising ease.

"This is the best Iowa State has been since I've coached at Oklahoma," declared the boss of the third-ranked Soonrs. "Their quarterback (Wayne Stanley)) can really throw the ball and they have two excellent receivers. They know how to run the ball, too. We'll get our toughest test so far this season up there.

Freshman Dogs win 3rd in a row

The freshman football team remained undefeated on the season as they rolled to their third consecutive win by defeating the Cape Girardeau Central High Tigers by the slim margin of 16-14.

Sikeston's scoring started in the first period as Joey Kyle ran two yards to cap a 65 yard drive and put the Bulldogs in front 6-0.

Then Gary Lasater scooted in with the two point conversion to extend the lead to 8-0.

The Tigers of Cape Central closed the spread to 8-6 before halftime as they scored on a 55 yard run by their tailback. The try for the conversion was missed.

Then in the third quarter, Cape's fullback lumbered in from two yards away as Cape led for the first time in the contest by a 12-8 margin. Then the quarterback finished the Tiger scoring as he ran in the two point conversion to put Sikeston further behind at 14-8.

Sikeston scored what proved to be the winning touchdown at the beginning of the fourth quarter as again they capped off a sustained drive with Johnny Longstreet diving in from one yard out to knot the score at 14-14. Then Joey Kyle rushed for the two point conversion which ultimately spelled the margin of victory for the Bulldogs.

In summing up his team's performance, coach George Hale said, "I thought it was a good game for our offense and overall our defense played a good game, however we did commit a couple of mental mistakes." What coach Hale was referring to was the 55 yard touchdown run and a 40 yard pass play which set up the second touchdown as the Cape receiver had beaten the Sikeston defender on the play.

The next encounter for the Bulldogs Freshman team will be next Thursday at Kennett when both the eighth and ninth grade teams will play.

O.J. Simpson has rushed for 105 yards. That's ot unusual. But it's taken him three games to get them. That's unusual.

The super-runner of the Buffalo Bills, who made the 100-yard game a commonplace occurrence the past few seasons, has been anything but super this year.

And he figures it's time he got his act together. The curtain-raiser may come Sunday against the visiting Kansas City Chiefs.

"I may not be as sharp as I want for extemporaneous running, making cutbacks and improvising once I get out there. But I think I'm in shape now," says Simpson, who sat out the entire preseason, on the verge of retirement, then rejoined the Bills on the eve of the season's start when owner Ralph Wilson Jr. came through with a bundle of money.

In Sunday's other games it's Washington at Chicago, Dallas at Seattle, Houston at New Orleans, Oakland at New England, Philadelphia at Atlanta, Cincinnati at Cleveland, Tampa Bay at Baltimore, Detroit at Green Bay, the New York Giants at St. Louis, Los Angeles at Miami, San Diego at Denver and the New York Jets at San Francisco. Monday night's game is Pittsburgh at Minnesota.

The Bills are one-touchdown favorites to beat the Chiefs, even though Kansas City has won six of the last seven games against Buffalo. The last time they met, however, it was a big day in a big season for Simpson. He sashayed through the Kansas City defense for 157 yards enroute to his 2,003-yard season and the Bills won 23-14.

Kansas City has won nothing this season. "We've just got to keep building, keep fighting and keep struggling," says Coach Paul Wiggin.

Chasing down opposing ball-carriers is nothing new for the Dexter Bearcats, who have given up over 40 points in each of their last three games. They will try to turn things around tonight as they take on the Bulldogs here tonight at 7:30. (Daily Standard photo)

Dexter Bearcats are guests for Bulldog homecoming tonight

The Sikeston Bulldogs would be wise to take a lesson from the experience of the St. Louis Football Cardinals last Sunday at San Diego.

The Big Red, well-knowing that the Chargers had a potent offensive unit, still might have been a bit over-confident going into the San Diego game. After all, the Cardinal defense was coming off an impressive shutout performance against Green Bay the week before.

But football fans know what happened. The explosive Chargers demolished St. Louis 43-24.

But what does all this have to do with the Bulldogs? A lot if you consider the similarity in the situation the Cardinals faced Sunday and that which confronts Sikeston tonight.

The Dexter Bearcats, the newest member of the Northern Division, boast probably the area's most prolific offense. New coach Tom Thrower, returning to Southesast Missouri to coach in the same town where he built a dynasty in the early sixties, has made a little talent go a long way at DHS.

Junior quarterback Lance Espey, a southpaw, is by far the area's leader in passing yardage this season. Espey has thrown for 505 yards and five touchdowns this season and has connected on 25 or 60 throws – not a bad percentage considering the fact that his team is playing catch-up football most of the time and the opposition knows that there is a good chance that the Cats will be throwing the ball.

Speedy running back Rick Guilliams, the fourth-leading rusher in the conference, has an impressive 7.3 yards-per-carry average going into tonight's encounter. Guilliams is also fourth in the league scoring race.

In the receiving department, Mike Grubbs heads a list of four Bearcats who rank among the conference's top twelve pass catchers. The lanky split end has caught twelve passes for an average of 16.9 yards-per-reception. The other wide receiver, Jim Dowdy, has seven catches, while Guilliams and backfield mate Kevin Orr are also among the leaders with five and three catches apiece.

The Bearcats' 101 points are second only to Poplar Bluff in that department. That's scoring at a clip of over 25 points per game – not bad in any league.

But for all their offensive heroics this season, which included a 34-point performance against Cape Central in Dexter's only previous conference game, the Bearcats have only one victory to show. The reason? A defense that has allowed more points (139) than any other area team but South Pemiscot.

"We just don't have the defensive people here at Dexter," said Thrower in outlining his problem. "Our linemen are too slow and too sluggish. They're about a year away from being good ballplayers."

But, as the old saying goes, "They've got to get better, because they can't get much worse." Sikeston fans hope they don't get better at the Bulldogs' expense.

As one area coach put it, "Dexter's going to explode one of these weeks. I'll be surprised if they don't beat somebody in the Northern Division."

A Bulldog letdown tonight could make that prediction come true. Although the Sikeston team is coming off an impressive defensive performance against Charleston, it would be foolish of SHS fans to expect the same against the high-powered Dexter eleven.

In the big game this week in the area, the Jackson Indians take on the Poplar Bluff Mules in a showdown between a pair of undefeated Northern Division powers.

Both teams are coming off big wins last week, with the Mules walloping Perryville and the Indians dumping Kennett.

Jackson coach Paul Webber recognizes the fact that his team will be a slight underdog in the

Volleyball team loses

The Sikeston volleyballers lost to Matthews last night in the varsity contest but won the jayvee match via forfeit as Matthews failed to field enough players.

Matthews forfeited the jayvee match for lack of players, however they had a varsity squad member play on the jayvee team so both schools could use this opportunity as a practice session. Sikeston prevailed in this match by 15-3 and 15-10 scores.

In the varsity contest, it was a different story as Matthews used their home court to great advantage in taking two consecutive thrilling games by 15-13 and 16-14 scores.

In the second contest, Sikeston was trailing 12-8 when they put on a spurt and grabbed a 14-12 lead. It was at this point that the game turned, as coach Janie Merrick describes it, "We served three straight net serves and then one of their girls served four points, 13-16, to beat us."

Sikeston had won a previous match this year but the Pirates gained revenge last night as Sikeston's record now stands at 4-2 on the season with tough Stoddard County foe, Bloomfield, next in line on Monday night.

Receives in tight stats race; Johnson breaks 1,000 yard mark

After the fourth week of area prep football action, statistics compiled by the Daily Standard show the closest individual races being in the pass receiving department, where there are heated battles in both the Northern Division and the Southern circuit.

In the North, Perryville's Joe Giesler leads in receptions with eleven, one more than speedy Mike Grubbs of Dexter. However, Grubbs holds a slight margin in the yardage department.

Chaffee's Don Kiefer is ahead in the Southern Division receiving race with fifteen catches. Kiefer has caught two more aerials than has Caruthersville's Kevin Meek and is over 100 yards ahead of his nearest competitor in the yardage column.

East Prairie's Danny Johnson became perhaps the first area player to break the magic 1,000-yard mark in rushing this early in the season (at least by our memory) as he carried for 412 yards against Hayti to give him 1,027 for the year. It would appear that only an injury would stop the talented senior from winning the South rushing crown, since his nearest challenger, Caruthersville's David Ellington, is miles behind at 332.

Poplar Bluff's David Webb is the Northern Division's leading rusher with 525 yards, while James Wilder of Sikeston, Mike Austin of Kennett and Rick Guilliams of Dexter are all within striking distance.

Lance Espey, quarterback of the offensive-minded Dexter Bearcats, is by far the North's most prolific passer with 505 yards through the air, although Sikeston's David Shell and Cape Central substitute Mike Brandt have better percentages. Doniphan's Bruce Hunt is the Southern Division leader in passing yards, although the South has two other passers, Randy Horrell of Chaffee and Wendell McGill of Caruthersville, who have more impressive statistics percentage-wise.

Cape Central's Jerome Smith is the Northern Division scoring leader with 42 points, although that race is far from over. In the South, Danny Johnson has a good start on winning the scoring crown as his five touchdowns against Hayti boosted his point total to 54 on the season.

These statistics do not include last night's Paducah Tilghman-Cape Central game and also do not include statistics of teams not reporting figures.

Tilghman rips Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Kentucky's third- ranked AAAA football team, the Paducah Tilghman Blue Tornado, gave the Cape Central Tigers a lesson in football Thursday night, clobbering the Bengals 62-13 at Houck Stadium.

Running back Kenny Anderson was the big star for Tilghman, scoring five touchdowns in a row to make a rout of it after Central had stayed close for a quarter.

Central actually led at one point, 7-6, after Rick Sipple broke loose for a 54-yard run. But Tilghman scored two more touchdowns in the first period to begin what was to be a long night for Central.

We already knew he was outstanding.

But NALU made it official.

Chasing down opposing ball-carriers is nothing new for the Dexter Bearcats, who have given up over 40 points in each of their last three games. They will try to turn things around tonight as they take on the Bulldogs here tonight at 7:30. (Daily Standard photo)

Dexter Bearcats are guests for Bulldog homecoming tonight

The Sikeston Bulldogs would be wise to take a lesson from the experience of the St. Louis Football Cardinals last Sunday at San Diego.

The Big Red, well-knowing that the Chargers had a potent offensive unit, still might have been a bit over-confident going into the San Diego game. After all, the Cardinal defense was coming off an impressive shutout performance against Green Bay the week before.

But football fans know what happened. The explosive Chargers demolished St. Louis 43-24.

But what does all this have to do with the Bulldogs? A lot if you consider the similarity in the situation the Cardinals faced Sunday and that which confronts Sikeston tonight.

The Dexter Bearcats, the newest member of the Northern Division, boast probably the area's most prolific offense. New coach Tom Thrower, returning to Southesast Missouri to coach in the same town where he built a dynasty in the early sixties, has made a little talent go a long way at DHS.

Junior quarterback Lance Espey, a southpaw, is by far the area's leader in passing yardage this season. Espey has thrown for 505 yards and five touchdowns this season and has connected on 25 or 60 throws – not a bad percentage considering the fact that his team is playing catch-up football most of the time and the opposition knows that there is a good chance that the Cats will be throwing the ball.

Speedy running back Rick Guilliams, the fourth-leading rusher in the conference, has an impressive 7.3 yards-per-carry average going into tonight's encounter. Guilliams is also fourth in the league scoring race.

In the receiving department, Mike Grubbs heads a list of four Bearcats who rank among the conference's top twelve pass catchers. The lanky split end has caught twelve passes for an average of 16.9 yards-per-reception. The other wide receiver, Jim Dowdy, has seven catches, while Guilliams and backfield mate Kevin Orr are also among the leaders with five and three catches apiece.

The Bearcats' 101 points are second only to Poplar Bluff in that department. That's scoring at a clip of over 25 points per game – not bad in any league.

But for all their offensive heroics this season, which included a 34-point performance against Cape Central in Dexter's only previous conference game, the Bearcats have only one victory to show. The reason? A defense that has allowed more points (139) than any other area team but South Pemiscot.

"We just don't have the defensive people here at Dexter," said Thrower in outlining his problem. "Our linemen are too slow and too sluggish. They're about a year away from being good ballplayers."

But, as the old saying goes, "They've got to get better, because they can't get much worse." Sikeston fans hope they don't get better at the Bulldogs' expense.

As one area coach put it, "Dexter's going to explode one of these weeks. I'll be surprised if they don't beat somebody in the Northern Division."

A Bulldog letdown tonight could make that prediction come true. Although the Sikeston team is coming off an impressive defensive performance against Charleston, it would be foolish of SHS fans to expect the same against the high-powered Dexter eleven.

In the big game this week in the area, the Jackson Indians take on the Poplar Bluff Mules in a showdown between a pair of undefeated Northern Division powers.

Both teams are coming off big wins last week, with the Mules walloping Perryville and the Indians dumping Kennett.

Jackson coach Paul Webber recognizes the fact that his team will be a slight underdog in the

Volleyball team loses

The Sikeston volleyballers lost to Matthews last night in the varsity contest but won the jayvee match via forfeit as Matthews failed to field enough players.

Matthews forfeited the jayvee match for lack of players, however they had a varsity squad member play on the jayvee team so both schools could use this opportunity as a practice session. Sikeston prevailed in this match by 15-3 and 15-10 scores.

In the varsity contest, it was a different story as Matthews used their home court to great advantage in taking two consecutive thrilling games by 15-13 and 16-14 scores.

In the second contest, Sikeston was trailing 12-8 when they put on a spurt and grabbed a 14-12 lead. It was at this point that the game turned, as coach Janie Merrick describes it, "We served three straight net serves and then one of their girls served four points, 13-16, to beat us."

Sikeston had won a previous match this year but the Pirates gained revenge last night as Sikeston's record now stands at 4-2 on the season with tough Stoddard County foe, Bloomfield, next in line on Monday night.

Receives in tight stats race; Johnson breaks 1,000 yard mark

After the fourth week of area prep football action, statistics compiled by the Daily Standard show the closest individual races being in the pass receiving department, where there are heated battles in both the Northern Division and the Southern circuit.

In the North, Perryville's Joe Giesler leads in receptions with eleven, one more than speedy Mike Grubbs of Dexter. However, Grubbs holds a slight margin in the yardage department.

Chaffee's Don Kiefer is ahead in the Southern Division receiving race with fifteen catches. Kiefer has caught two more aerials than has Caruthersville's Kevin Meek and is over 100 yards ahead of his nearest competitor in the yardage column.

East Prairie's Danny Johnson became perhaps the first area player to break the magic 1,000-yard mark in rushing this early in the season (at least by our memory) as he carried for 412 yards against Hayti to give him 1,027 for the year. It would appear that only an injury would stop the talented senior from winning the South rushing crown, since his nearest challenger, Caruthersville's David Ellington, is miles behind at 332.

Poplar Bluff's David Webb is the Northern Division's leading rusher with 525 yards, while James Wilder of Sikeston, Mike Austin of Kennett and Rick Guilliams of Dexter are all within striking distance.

Lance Espey, quarterback of the offensive-minded Dexter Bearcats, is by far the North's most prolific passer with 505 yards through the air, although Sikeston's David Shell and Cape Central substitute Mike Brandt have better percentages. Doniphan's Bruce Hunt is the Southern Division leader in passing yards, although the South has two other passers, Randy Horrell of Chaffee and Wendell McGill of Caruthersville, who have more impressive statistics percentage-wise.

Cape Central's Jerome Smith is the Northern Division scoring leader with 42 points, although that race is far from over. In the South, Danny Johnson has a good start on winning the scoring crown as his five touchdowns against Hayti boosted his point total to 54 on the season.

These statistics do not include last night's Paducah Tilghman-Cape Central game and also do not include statistics of teams not reporting figures.

Tilghman rips Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Kentucky's third- ranked AAAA football team, the Paducah Tilghman Blue Tornado, gave the Cape Central Tigers a lesson in football Thursday night, clobbering the Bengals 62-13 at Houck Stadium.

Running back Kenny Anderson was the big star for Tilghman, scoring five touchdowns in a row to make a rout of it after Central had stayed close for a quarter.

Central actually led at one point, 7-6, after Rick Sipple broke loose for a 54-yard run. But Tilghman scored two more touchdowns in the first period to begin what was to be a long night for Central.

We already knew he was outstanding.

But NALU made it official.

game, although he is not quite ready to slight the chances of his defending conference champs. "I've been going to church a lot," says Webber. "Maybe that's why we're winning."

In other area games, Charleston meets Perryville in the only other Northern Division conference clash. In the South, East Prairie hosts Caruthersville, Chaffee takes on Illmo-Scott City, South Pemiscot meets Malden and Doniphan tackles Portageville. Kennett travels to Paragould, Arkansas for an interstate battle.

Ali says he quits

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — World heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali said today he is quitting fighting to devote himself to spreading the Moslem faith throughout the world.

"As of now," Ali told a crowd of reporters and photographers, "I am quitting boxing and will devote all my energy to the propagation of the Moslem faith."

Ali said his decision to end his boxing career came at the urging of Wallace Muhammad, leader of the Black Moslem community in the United States, who is also in Turkey at the invitation of the pro-Moslem National Salvation party.

Ali, who successfully defended his title Tuesday night in New York against Ken Norton, made his comments at a news conference in the Istanbul governor's office.

"Mark my words and play what I say right now fully," Ali said. "At the urging of my leader Wallace, I declare that I am quitting fighting as of now and from now on I will join in the struggle for the Islamic cause."

This is not the first time Ali has said he would retire. In June 1975, he said his upcoming fight with Joe Bugner of Britain would be his last.

But following that fight in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, Ali has fought and defeated Jean Pierre Coopman, Joe Frazier, Jimmy Young, Richard Dunn and Ken Norton. After defeating Norton earlier this week in New York's Yankee Stadium to retain his title, Ali spoke of an upcoming fight with George Foreman.

PET CEMETERIES

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The National Association of Pet Cemeteries held its fifth annual convention here, attended by about 135 pet cemetery owners from all over the nation.

"The idea of pet cemeteries isn't new," said Patricia Blosser, a founder, past president and now executive director of the association. "It goes all the way back to the Egyptian pharaohs. But our association right now is one of the fastest-growing trade groups in the country."

Mrs. Blosser and her husband Robert operate a boarding kennel and grooming parlor for dogs in Elgin, Ill. They also operate a pet cemetery there, one of 418 listed in the United States.

Of pets receiving cemetery burials or cremations, 75 per cent are dogs, 24 per cent cats and 1 per cent miscellaneous, with horses the most common in the latter category, Mrs. Blosser said.

Hoople sees Ohio State gaining revenge

By Major Amos B. Hoople

Egad, friends, this is the week Woody Hayes and his Ohio State stalwarts have been waiting for — the rematch with potent UCLA. It's safe to say — kaff-kaff — that the Bucks and their mentor, redoubtable Coach Hayes, have thought of little else during the 274 days that have intervened since these teams last met in the Rose Bowl and UCLA pulled a colossal upset. Yas, my friends, that Bruin conquest was a bitter pill for the Columbus contingent to swallow and, one might say — heh-heh — it made them a little ill. And for the record they intend to get well this Saturday.

Beating Ohio State anywhere, anytime is difficult and beating them in Columbus is almost impossible so the UCLA lads have their work cut out for them. Both Ohio State and UCLA have devastating attacks capable of rolling up 500 yards each in a single afternoon, therefore we look for a high scoring affair. We believe Pete Johnson, Jeff Logan and Ron Gerald should put more points on the board than the Uclans talented duo Jeff Dankworth and Theottis Brown. The Hoople Forecast: Ohio State 35, UCLA 31 — Har-rumph!

There are many other big games around the country with three of them slated for the Southeast Conference. The top attraction will pit Alabama against Georgia at Athens. Our Atlanta correspondent, Georgie Peech, having watched both teams in action, gives the edge to the Bulldogs.

game, although he is not quite ready to slight the chances of his defending conference champs. "I've been going to church a lot," says Webber. "Maybe that's why we're winning."

In other area games, Charleston meets Perryville in the only other Northern Division conference clash. In the South, East Prairie hosts Caruthersville, Chaffee takes on Illmo-Scott City, South Pemiscot meets Malden and Doniphan tackles Portageville. Kennett travels to Paragould, Arkansas for an interstate battle.

Ali says he quits

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — World heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali said today he is quitting fighting to devote himself to spreading the Moslem faith throughout the world.

"As of now," Ali told a crowd of reporters and photographers, "I am quitting boxing and will devote all my energy to the propagation of the Moslem faith."

Ali said his decision to end his boxing career came at the urging of Wallace Muhammad, leader of the Black Moslem community in the United States, who is also in Turkey at the invitation of the pro-Moslem National Salvation party.

Ali, who successfully defended his title Tuesday night in New York against Ken Norton, made his comments at a news conference in the Istanbul governor's office.

"Mark my words and play what I say right now fully," Ali said. "At the urging of my leader Wallace, I declare that I am quitting fighting as of now and from now on I will join in the struggle for the Islamic cause."

This is not the first time Ali has said he would retire. In June 1975, he said his upcoming fight with Joe Bugner of Britain would be his last.

But following that fight in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, Ali has fought and defeated Jean Pierre Coopman, Joe Frazier, Jimmy Young, Richard Dunn and Ken Norton. After defeating Norton earlier this week in New York's Yankee Stadium to retain his title, Ali spoke of an upcoming fight with George Foreman.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The National Association of Pet Cemeteries held its fifth annual convention here, attended by about 135 pet cemetery owners from all over the nation.

"The idea of pet cemeteries isn't new," said Patricia Blosser, a founder, past president and now executive director of the association. "It goes all the way back to the Egyptian pharaohs. But our association right now is one of the fastest-growing trade groups in the country."

Mrs. Blosser and her husband Robert operate a boarding kennel and grooming parlor for dogs in Elgin, Ill. They also operate a pet cemetery there, one of 418 listed in the United States.

Of pets receiving cemetery burials or cremations, 75 per cent are dogs, 24 per cent cats and 1 per cent miscellaneous, with horses the most common in the latter category, Mrs. Blosser said.

Rahway State Prison has room for religion

RAHWAY, N.J., (AP) — As a house of worship it attracts few holy men. It has barbed wire and gun turrets to keep parishioneers inside and one of the ministers is a bank robber.

But the maximum security state prison here does have religion. There are inmates desperate for something to believe in. And there are those struggling to use a few minutes of prayer to escape in their minds from the grim surroundings.

"I can't think of any place where there's more need for faith," says Pat Barrett, director of social services for the New Jersey prison system.

Rahway State Prison is a maximum security jail. It is the Sing Sing and San Quentin of New Jersey — filled with 1,100 felons mostly produced by the ghettos of Newark, Passaic, Trenton, Paterson and other industrial towns. The prison population is 80 per cent black.

"The overwhelming majority of those here are not religious in any organized, systematic way," says Protestant Chairman William Barrett, no relation. "When a man seeks faith, the peer group here doesn't say, "Oh gee you're a Christian, how great."

Nevertheless, about 50 persons attend Barrett's services on Sundays, and 25 take part in a special study group every Tuesday night. Most have sought the comfort of prayer since entering prison; few ever attended services before they were incarcerated, Barrett says.

Barrett has been chaplain for two months and has hopes for growth.

"Right now we have a group of people who come to church, but it's not really a community," he says. "They come to church for the same reasons those outside do — they are people for whom Christ is the center of life. After they have been here a while they see that clearly."

The largest organized religious group in the prison is the Nation of Islam, which attracts about 200 inmates to its Saturday services.

"If the people here had followed the teachings of religion before they came here, they wouldn't be here," says W.E. Rabb, elected by his fellow Muslim inmates to be their minister.

Rabb, serving a 12-year sentence for bank robbery, leads prayers in the chapel. His sermons preach the evils of drugs and homosexuality and he reports to his listeners on the progress of efforts to persuade prison authorities to drop pork from the menu. The effort, made on religious principles, has been unsuccessful so far.

"We try to teach ourselves to rule our emotions, and not let the gangster mentality that put us here to control our lives," says Rabb.

Rabb also acknowledges that the Muslim organization serves two purposes — religious and political. Rabb is co-chairman of the inmate grievance committee, a position he achieved with the votes of his adherents.

As a bloc, the Muslims are a force to be reckoned with in the complex prison social order, Rabb says, describing his group as an "assist to the authorities."

"It takes a great burden off the administration — we keep them from needing big goon squads," Rabb says.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

For jealousy and selfishness are not God's kind of wisdom. Such things are earthly, unspiritual, inspired by the devil. For wherever there is jealousy or selfish ambition, there will be disorder and every other kind of evil. But the wisdom that comes from heaven is first of all pure and full of quiet gentleness. Then it is peace-loving and courteous. It allows discussion and is willing to yield to others; it is full of mercy and good deeds. And those who are peacemakers will plant seeds of peace and reap a harvest of goodness.

New Bible translates God's Word into metrics

LONDON (AP) — The latest British Bible has gone metric, giving Noah's ark-building orders in meters and centimeters instead of cubits and weighing Goliath's armor in kilograms instead of shekels of brass.

The British and Foreign Bible Society said Wednesday the metric measures were used for the new Bible "because we want it to last."

Britain is in the process of converting to the metric system from miles, yards, feet, inches, pounds and ounces.

In the "Good News Bible" to be published on October 11, God tells Noah to build the ark "133 meters long, 22 meters wide and 13 meters high ... and leave a space of 44 centimeters between the roof and the sides."

The 400-year-old original English translation from Greek and Hebrew measured the ark at 300 cubits.

The new Bible makes Goliath, giant adversary of the boy David, nearly three meters tall instead of six cubits and a span. His armor weighs about 57 kilograms instead of five thousand shekels of brass.

The new Bible, translated by a panel of eight scholars of the American Bible Society and the United Bible Societies, was launched in 1966 with the New Testament, called "Good News for Modern Man." It has sold 50 million copies worldwide, according to Tom Houston, communications director of the BFBS.

The latest edition adds the Old Testament.

Houston said the American edition converts weights and measures into the English system, which is used in the United States, "but we wanted to go one step farther."

The new Bible, billed as "Today's English Version" and tipped as a runaway best-seller when it goes on sale, shows God not only knows how many centimeters there are in a meter but is up on His metric measures of wine.

In the book of Exodus, the Good News Bible has God telling Aaron about the daily sacrifice of two lambs and says: "With the first lamb offer one kilogram of fine wheat flour mixed with one liter of pure olive oil. Pour out one liter of wine as an offering."

A spokesman for the publishers, Collins and the Bible Society, said "converting measurements in the Bible to the metric system seemed the natural thing to do for a modern gospel."

Unleavened bread becomes "bread without yeast" in further attempts at simplifying the Bible.

The new Bible acknowledges women's lib.

The old Authorized Version quoted Job as saying, "Man that is born of a woman is of few days and full of trouble." The new paraphrasing observes: "We are all born weak and helpless."

Every motor driven vessel should have an identification number painted on each side of the bow and the copy of the number should be aboard whenever the vessel is in operation.

Homecoming to host Scott County singing

Smith Street Church of God, 420 Smith St., will observe its annual Homecoming Day with all-day services featuring the monthly meeting of the Scott County Singing Convention as the concluding event in the afternoon.

The 2 p.m. singing program will feature the Clark Singers of Pittsburg, Ill., Dwight Richardson Trio from Bertrand, Tolbert Sisters of Sikeston and other area singers.

Murray Lane choir to sing at Lilbourn

The choir from Murray Lane Baptist Church, 807 W. Murray Lane, will present the musical, "I Love America", during the 7 p.m. service Sunday at First Baptist Church in Lilbourn.

Eileen Sewald is the choir director for the Bicentennial year musical salute to America's religious heritage.

Huffman to conduct Clayton Avenue revival

The Rev. Jarell Huffman will be the evangelist for revival services beginning Sunday and continuing through Oct. 10 at Clayton Avenue Baptist Church, 200 Clayton Ave. The services will start at 7:30 each evening.

The Rev. Mr. Huffman is a former resident of Sikeston, having served as pastor of Clayton Avenue Baptist Church from 1962 until 1966. He now lives in Marlow, Okla., where he serves as pastor of Bray Baptist Church and is an instructor at Oklahoma Baptist Seminary.

Special singing will be featured nightly with both the adult and youth choirs of the church performing.

A nursery will be provided for every service.

The pastor of the church is the Rev. Eugene Tarter.
